Transition.

'Tis said, indeed, upon the face
Of Age, a momentary trace
Of Infancy's exuberant grace
Forebodes decay;

And here, in Autumn's dusky reign,
A birth of blossom seems again
To flush the woodland's fading train
With dreams of May.

A PROMPT SOLUTION.

BY EMMA A. OPPER.

It was the typical country store. There were soap and pins, and needles and letter-paper, and back-combs and paper collars, and suspenders, in glass cases in the front, and crockery and calico, and tinware and overalls, and cowhide boots, disposed on the shelves and butter and dried beef, and buck-wheat and kerosene, and molasses and codfish, in friendly confusion in the rear. Its motley variety was, indeed, a necessity. Lamphier's was the one store of Unionville.

If Lamphier's was the typical country store, Lottie Lamphier was not the typical country storekeeper's daughter. So John Stockham, Mr. Lamphier's clerk from the next town, had thought, when he first saw her tripping into the store one morning after a spoon of thread and a pound of coffee—she was her father's housekeeper.

She had seemed to John, in her crisp, pink calico, and her natty straw hat, the next jaunty-stylish girl he had ever seen, as well as the prettiest.

That was four months ago. Lottie came down to the store frequently. Of course was a necessity that she should, something was always needed at the house. Certainly John was far too modest to dream that his presence could have the remotest influence on her comings and goings.

But he had not neglected his opportunities. He had talked to her as he tried up her apron or rolled up her lining cambric and smiled at her from over the kerosene can and the molasses barrel, and Lottie had not been prudishly backward in responding. The first snow found them very good friends indeed.

The one blot on this extremely pleasant companionship was Mr. Lamphier. Whether Mr. Lamphier was guilty of the notion that this clerk was an undesirable party, and therefore a dangerous companion for his daughter; or, whether he was possessed of an ignoble fear of the loss of a good housekeeper; or whether he had merely developed a streak of the unreason and contrariness not entirely unknown to elderly gentlemen who are undazzling their first touches of rheumatism, and feeling the need of an older pair of glasses—what Mr. Lamphier's motive was was doubtful.

But he was plainly opposed to John Stockham's growing admiration for his pretty daughter.

The scene which took place one snowy December morning had come to be a common one.

Lottie came down to the store at a quarter to nine. It was earlier than she generally came, and the fact accounted for the blackness of Mr. Lamphier's frown.

Her new brown dress was extraordinarily stylish and becoming, and John Stockham fairly blushed with delighted admiration at the sight of her.

"Lottie had nothing to get but a pound of rice, and it was impossible to be long about getting that. But Lottie was a young person of ways and means."

"Good-morning, Mr. Stockham," she called out, cheerfully.

John was replenishing the fire at the back of the store.

"Good-morning, Miss Lamphier," he rejoined, with subdued enthusiasm.

Mr. Lamphier's sharp eyes were upon him, and he did not venture to join her.

"What are these, pa?" cried Lottie, immediately. "Do come and show me how they work, Mr. Stockham."

They were patent mouse-traps. It was improbable that Lottie was ignorant of their function, or that John Stockham believed that she was; but he got himself to the front of the store with alacrity.

"It's lovely weather, Mr. Stockham," Lottie observed, forgetting the mouse-trap. "Elegant!"

"Is it?" said John, not brilliantly, but devotedly, looking his admiration of Lottie's bright eyes and red cheeks.

"Oh, yes; the snow's a foot deep, and I had to wade, but I like it."

"Do you like walking alone—by yourself?" John ventured.

"Oh, well, I suppose it would be pleasanter with somebody along."

"I should say so, decidedly," said John, growing bolder.

"Stockham!" Mr. Lamphier called, snappily, "please attend to customers."

The "customers" consisted of old Billy Murdock, who came in regularly to sit over the stove, but never bought anything; but John went back obediently.

There was a period of silence, and then a clatter from the front.

"Oh, goodness!" cried Lottie, in a tone of horror. "I've knocked down a box of curtain-fixtures, Mercy! do help me to pick them up!"

John rushed to her side. He did not know whether she had knocked them off purposely, though he hoped she had. Lottie knew; but she looked quite innocently regretful.

They groped about together for the missing curtain-fixtures, among the empty boxes under the counter. Occasionally their hands touched each other.

"We'll never find them all," said Lottie.

"I hope we won't. I'm willing to keep on hunting," John rejoined, with a sly, shy glance at the pretty face near him.

"I've got a lot of things to do at home," said Lottie smiling back at him. "I'm trimming a new hat."

"You could improve on that one," John put in, with another admiring glance.

"And if I'm going to have rice-pudding for dinner it ought to be going on," said Lottie, musingly.

But she kept on feeling aimlessly about for curtain fixtures.

"I'd be glad to walk home with you if you never were my own," said John, wistfully.

"You've never been to the house, have you?" Lottie queried.

"You've never invited me," John responded, with gentle reproach. "Not that I'd dare to come if you did," he added, with a faint motion of his head toward Mr. Lamphier.

Lottie sighed.

"If you could get an evening off," she suggested, timidly. "Pa isn't home till half-past ten or so, and—"

John turned a radiantly grateful face upon her.

"You know I'd be delighted, Miss Lamphier," he almost gasped. "I'd—"

"Stockham!" Mr. Lamphier's voice was alarmingly near. "I want that box of spices opened immediately."

Mr. Lamphier's head projected itself over the counter; he glared down at the startled pair beneath it.

John looked at Lottie. There was a daring light in his eyes.

"I'll come this evening."

He formed the words inaudibly with his lips, and hurried away.

Mr. Lamphier slapped the package of rice on the counter, frowningly.

Lottie brushed off her dress, readjusted her veil, extracted a piece of citron from a jar and nibbled at it, and went out, with a parting smile for John Stockham.

If Lottie put on her best dress, and her prettiest ruchings, and her silver hair-pin and bracelets, that evening, after her father had eaten his supper and gone back to the store; and if somebody knocked at the kitchen-door about eight, and if the kitchen resounded for two hours thereafter with pleasant chat, and harmless badinage, and light-hearted laughter—if these things occurred, surely it was nobody's business.

"I don't need to tell you how I've enjoyed the evening, Miss Lamphier," said John Stockham, earnestly, as he rose at last, lingeringly.

"I know I shouldn't have come; but—I couldn't help it and I can't be sorry I did."

"Certainly not," said Lottie, with pretty warmth.

"I should like to come again," John pursued; "but of course this isn't the way."

"I don't care—now or never," said Lottie stoutly. "If I will be so unreasonable, I don't know what else we can—Goodness! what is that, Mr. Stockham?"

She sniffed at her apprehensively.

John sniffed, too.

"It's smoke!" he declared.

"Mercy where?" cried Lottie.

"We'll have to investigate," said John, taking up the lamp.

They went into the back entry. It was blue with smoke. Lottie gave a little scream.

"Something's a-fire," said John Stockham. "Don't be alarmed, Miss Lamphier," he added, solicitously.

He opened the wood-house door. They were choked by the rush of smoke and hot air. Their startled gaze revealed one side of the wood-house alive with licking, darting flames.

John Stockham's practical mind worked quickly.

"Where's the sink, Miss Lamphier?" he demanded, "and a water pail. Two, if possible. We'll have to work to stop it. It's got a good start."

They did work. They rushed to and fro with heavy pails of water, half-blinded by the smoke, hot from the flames, dripping with spilled water.

At the end of a confused fifteen minutes, they sat down, exhausted and dizzy, in the doorway, and surveyed the scene.

One wall of the wood-house was burned black. At one point the flames had burst through, and the moonlight came streaming in.

It shone on the recumbent form of a red-faced, blowzy, and obviously inebriated tramp, sleeping peacefully on a pile of kindling wood. It shone on a dirty clay pipe thrust into a little mound of shavings, which still smouldered.

It shone, furthermore, on Mr. Lamphier, standing in the wood-house door and staring in.

Lottie was more than equal to the occasion. She was not a person to let a golden opportunity escape her.

She rushed over to her father and clasped both hands around his arm, with a tragic little shriek.

"Oh, pa," she cried, "just look! Just think what you've escaped! The house would have been burned down in another minute—in one minute—all burned down!"

Mr. Stockham has saved it. If he hadn't been here and we hadn't smelled smoke and come out here, found the wood-house all ablaze, and worked like anything to put it out, just think what would have happened! It was that horrid tramp. He'd got in here some how and gone to sleep smoking, and his horrid pipe had set things a-fire. I'm so glad Mr. Stockham was here—ain't you, pa, dear?"

Mr. Lamphier looked at his daughter and at John Stockham, and at the blackened wall, and at the serenely-slumbering tramp.

"Ah, yes," he responded. "It was fortunate you happened along, Stockham."

There was a tinge of irony in his tone, and some grimaces in his smile; but Lottie did not mind that—nor did John Stockham.

They realized that, by a fortunate turn of events, Mr. Lamphier was defeated, and made to appreciate and admit the fact.

They cared little for the burned beams; they were not conscious of their dripping clothes; the slumbering tramp seemed an angel in disguise.

"Well, it's the way to do," Lottie declared, a few weeks later, when she and John Stockham were safely engaged, and Mr. Lamphier had given them his blessing, and intimated that he'd thought of taking a partner, and that John might possibly do—it's the way to do. If we'd just stood back as meek as mice, and waited for pa to come round and invite you up to the house—Mercy! I can't bear to think of it!"—[Saturday Night.

Writing by Electricity.

The wonderful invention of writing by electricity at a distance of fifty miles is thus described by the Pall Mall Gazette: "Out of the top of a box, which is about the size of an ordinary dispatch-box, protrudes what has the appearance of a stylographic pen. This, however, is not a pen, but the handle of the transmitter, and its lower end is fixed to a light brass perpendicular bar. Any motion given by the hand—your hold it just like a pen—will be communicated by the handle of the transmitter is communicated by this bar to two series of carbon disks contained within the box, and after various adventures among magnets, etc., is carried again to the top of the box, where it is reproduced exactly by a small ink-holding pen, whose point rests on a white paper tape. A clockwork apparatus pulls this tape along at a gentle pace; and after a little practice you find that it is quite easy to move the handle of the transmitter so that the pen shall write legibly on the moving tape. Now, whatever is written on the tape before it is written simultaneously a mile off, or it may be fifty miles off, on a similar tape, by a similar instrument at the other end of the wire. The instrument is very compact, and apparently efficient."

The inventor is Mr. John Robertson, an American.

Transplanting Teeth.

Transplanting teeth has long been successfully performed by several prominent dentists without any proclamation. The process is painful, tedious, and requires skill and experience. An office is lured in the bone, into which the artificial tooth is riveted, the gum soon growing naturally around it. [New York Times.

THE PHONOGRAPH.

How Edison Has Perfected an Extraordinary Instrument.

A Machine Which Records and Reproduces Human Speech.

To a New York Post reporter Edison, the great inventor, said of his newly-finished phonograph: "You know that I finished this phonograph more than ten years ago. It remained more or less a toy. The germ of something wonderful was perfectly distinct, but I tried the impossible with it, and when the electric light business assumed commercial importance, I threw everything overboard for that. Nevertheless, the phonograph had been more or less constantly in my mind ever since. When resting from prolonged work upon the light, my brain would revert almost automatically to the old idea. Since the light has been finished, I have taken up the phonograph, and after eight months of steady work, have made it a commercial invention. My phonograph I expect to see in every business office. Their operation is simplicity itself, and cannot fail. The merchant or clerk who wishes to send a letter has only to set the machine in motion, and to talk in his natural voice, and the usual copy of speech is received. When he has finished, the sheet, or 'phonogram,' as I call it, is ready for putting into a little box made up for the mails. We are making the sheets in three sizes—one for letters of from 800 to 1000 words, another for 4000 words. I expect that an arrangement may be made with the postoffice authorities enabling the phonogram boxes to be sent at the same rate as a letter."

"The receiver of a phonogram will put it into his apparatus and the message will be given out more clearly, more distinctly than the best telephone message ever sent. The tones of the voice in the two phonograms which I have finished are so perfectly rendered that one can distinguish between twenty different persons, each one of whom has said a few words. One great advantage is that the letter may be repeated a thousand times if necessary. The phonogram does not wear out by use; moreover, it may be filed away for a hundred years and be ready the instant it is needed. If a man dictates his letter to the phonograph, there will be no danger of the loss of the document, or of those who know the tones of his voice in life. The cost of making the phonogram will be scarcely more than the cost of ordinary letter paper. The machine will read out the letter or message at the same speed with which it was dictated."

"I have experimented with a device for enabling printers to set type directly from the dictation of the phonograph, and think that it will work to a charm. It is so arranged that the printer by touching a lever with his foot allows five or ten words of the phonogram to be sounded; if he is not satisfied with the first hearing he can make it repeat the same words over and over again until he has them in type. For busy men who dictate a great deal for the press, I am sure that the phonograph will be a necessity after a very little experience."

"For musicians the phonograph is going to do wonders, owing to the extreme cheapness with which it can duplicate phonograms and the delicacy with which the apparatus gives out all the musical sounds. In the early phonograph of ten years ago, which was a very imperfect and crude affair compared to that of to-day, it was always noticed that musical sounds came out peculiarly well; the machine would whistle or sing far better than it could talk. This peculiarity of the phonograph remains. I have taken down the music of an orchestra, and the result is marvellous; each instrument can be perfectly distinguished, the violins from the cellos, the wind instruments and the wood are perfectly heard, and even in the notes of a violin the over-tones are distinct to a delicate ear. It is going to work wonders for the benefit of music-lovers. A piece for any instrument, for the piano, or for an orchestra, or an act, or the whole of an opera, musical instruments and voices, can be given out by the phonograph with the same clearness and distinctness past belief, and the duplicating apparatus for phonograms is so cheap an affair that the price of music for the phonograph will be scarcely worth considering. As the phonogram will be practically indelible by ordinary use, such music can be played over and over again."

"My first phonograph, as you remember, consisted simply of a roller carrying the foil, and provided with a diaphragm-point, properly arranged to scrape or indent the foil. The roller was turned by hand. In the new instrument there is far more complication, but altogether different results. My propelling machinery consists of a small electric motor, run by a very few cells. Strange to say, I have found more difficulty in getting a motor to suit me than any other part of the apparatus. I tried various kinds of clock-work and spring motors, but found them untrustworthy and noisy. The motors I am now making are absolutely steady and noiseless. There is no part of the apparatus, the tools for which I am now making upon a large scale here, which is likely to get out of order or to work in an uncertain manner. The two finished phonograms are practically exactly what I intend to offer for sale within a few months."

Newspaper Laws.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered wishing to continue their subscription.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals the publisher may continue to send until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills, and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publishers, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The Courts hold that refusing to take periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncollected, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

6. Any person who receives a newspaper and makes use of it, whether he has ordered it or not, is held by law as subscriber.

7. If subscribers pay in advance, they are bound to give notice to the publishers, at the end of their time, if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it on, and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrears, is sent to the publisher.

EDITORIAL.

GOV. MAIMADUKU, of Missouri, is dead.

MAJOR COOPER, of Atlanta, pardoned all the prisoners on Christmas day.

FIFTY persons were put into the Atlanta station house Saturday the 24th of December last for being drunk.

WOODFOLK has been sent back to Macon jail where he will remain until some disposition is made of his case.

A MONUMENT is to be erected in Chicago to the Confederate soldiers buried in the North. The war is undoubtedly over.

DANIEL MANNING, Ex-Secretary of the Treasury under President Cleveland, died at his home in New York on the 24th of December.

DANIEL MANNING, the dead ex-Secretary of the Treasury, was once a poor "printer's devil" and worked his way up to fame and fortune. There is some cheer and hope for the poor boy.

COL. CHARLES D. PHILLIPS, of Marietta, a lawyer well known in this part of Georgia, was assaulted in Dallas, Ga., on the 26th inst., by a man named Bullock and shot three times. He is not fatally injured.

FANNIE PEELER, a poor but unfortunate woman, living near Gainesville, was found dead on the roadside Christmas morning. She was addicted to drinking and the supposition is that she got drunk and froze to death in the mud.

A CROWD of negroes lynched and shot a white man near Central, Pickens county, S. C., last Friday night. The white man was accused of outraging a negro girl, and was on his way to Pickens in charge of two guards whom the negroes overpowered and made release their prisoner. It is the only instance of negroes lynching a white man in that State, and the white people are indignant and threaten to quickly dispose of the negro lynchers if they are found out. There was doubt about the man's guilt, and the lynching is condemned as an uncalculated and irreparable affair.

GAINESVILLE Eagle. Messrs. Camp Bros. have at their lively stable, in this city, a fine shepherd dog that is well trained and wonderfully sagacious. If a horse leaves his stall, "Shep," as the dog is called, will, by barking and snapping at his heels, soon force him to return to it. He will go along the line of the stalls, and when a horse is standing too far back, Shep will snap at his hind legs until he moves well up into his place. Though horses kick at him, he somehow never gets hit. He is boss of the stable, and the horses soon learn that they must obey him.

A negro named Roland Taylor met a horrible death at Toccoa. He was confined in the calaboose for some petty offence, and at three o'clock Monday morning the jail was found on fire. Every effort was made to rescue the man, but he was burned to death. The next morning there was nothing left to tell the tale but some ashes and bones. The negro set the building on fire hoping to escape during the excitement.

"Boys, never forget that you stand as protector of every girl into whose society you may be thrown. Remember that as you treat her, so may your nearest and dearest be treated. Hold her sacred in your thoughts and actions as you would have your own mother and sister held by others. Remember, too, that reason and right make incumbent upon you to bring as clear a record of your life to the woman you would make your wife, as you would demand of her."

Capt. Henry Harris, of the collector's office at Atlanta, made the mistake of appearing in the United States court room there Friday to testify in a pending case in his shirt sleeves. Judge Newman looked at him. "Witnesses in this court," remarked his honor, "are expected to conform to the rules of etiquette and to be clothed in proper habiliments. No man has a right to bare arms in the presence of this tribunal. Retire, Mr. Witness, and properly adjust your clothing, so that your testimony can be taken. Retire, sir." The captain retired.

The Most Sanguinary War.
Investigation recently made in the War Department, at Washington, shows that the late American civil war was relatively the most sanguinary on record. Though the Federal and Confederate returns are not altogether exact, the War Office is able to give close approximate estimate of the killed, wounded, and missing in the Federal forces. According to the statistics, 297,925 Union soldiers lie buried in the various national cemeteries. Including losses of which no account can be taken, the war cost the North 320,000 lives, or more than one in nine of all those who entered the service.

The two opposing armies met in over 2,000 skirmishes and battles. In 148 of these conflicts the loss on the Federal side was upward of 500 men, and in at least ten battles more than 10,000 were reported lost on each side. The combined losses of the Federal and Confederate forces in killed, wounded, and missing in the following engagements were: Shiloh, 14,000; Antietam, 38,000; Stone River, 37,000; Chickamauga, 33,000; Gettysburg, 54,000; Chickamauga, 33,000; McClellan's peninsular campaign, 50,000; Grant's peninsular campaign, 135,000.

Waterloo was one of the most desperate and bloody chronicled in European history, yet Wellington's casualties were less than 12 per cent, while during the American war the loss at Murfreesboro, Atlanta, Chickamauga, Gettysburg, and other places, frequently reached, and sometimes exceeded, 40 per cent, and the average of killed and wounded on the side or the other side 30 per cent. If the figures of the Confederate losses could be accurately ascertained, the total deaths in the late war would probably surpass 500,000. It is not a little curious that the losses and captured men of the Federals—who were victorious in the struggle—equalled the whole of the Confederate forces.

Georgia equipped 87 regiments, 38 battalions and 30 independent companies of infantry, and in addition thereto sent into the field 13 regiments, 15 battalions and 24 independent companies of artillery, to battle for Southern rights in the late war. Georgia is the Empire State in war as well as peace.

In Lee county, Georgia, Sunday night of last week, Nathan Reed brutally murdered his wife and six children, set fire to the house and burned it down and then cut his own throat from ear to ear.

The North Carolina Legislature has just passed a bill making it a misdemeanor for any grocery merchant to offer a chromo as a premium to purchasers of their goods.

I WISH TO INFORM MY MANY friends and the traveling public generally that I have taken charge of the large and commodious Little Stable of E. R. and J. Ed. Meaders, and having had it thoroughly overhauled and fitted up in first rate style, I am prepared to accommodate the public with good safe Teams and Vehicles.

Also have plenty to feed on, and solicit a liberal share of the patronage. Will give special attention to feeding Transient Horses.

Administrator's Sale.

On the first Tuesday in February next will be sold at the court house door in the town of Dahlonega, is said county, within the legal hours of sale, a parcel of land in the north-east corner of lot No. 113 in the first district of originally Habersham, but now Lumpkin county, containing 20 acres more or less, bounded by lands of George Bowen, Isaac Rucker and Jack Alexander, being the land owned by Chancy Turk at the time of her death. Sold for payment of debts and distribution, by order of the Court of Ordinary of Lumpkin County. Isaac Rucker, Administrator. January 4, 1888.

A. G. Kennedy v. Rule Kid To foreclose mortgage on E. A. Evans. To enforce in Lumpkin Superior Court. October term 1887. It appearing to the court, that A. A. Evans, the said defendant, has not been served as required by law; It is therefore ordered that the said R. A. Evans, the mortgagee named in said mortgage, and the assignor of said mortgage, pay into this court, on or before the first day of its next term, 1888, the principal and interest due on said notes and the cost of this proceeding, or in default thereof the Court will proceed as to justice shall appear. It is further ordered that the said R. A. Evans be served by publishing this order once a month for four months before the next term of this court in the Dahlonega Signal, a newspaper published in Dahlonega, Ga.

C. J. WELLS, J. S. C. I certify the foregoing to be a true extract from the minutes of said court This December 15th, 1887. E. C. HALL, C. S. C.

FACTS YOU CAN BET ON. That the oldest and largest tobacco factory in the world is in Jersey City, N. J.

That this factory makes the popular and world-famous Climax Plug, the acknowledged standard for first-class chewing tobacco.

That this factory was established as long ago as 1876.

That last year (1887) it made and sold the enormous quantity of 27,000,000 lbs. or fourteen thousand tons of tobacco.

That this was more than one-fourth of all the tobacco made in the United States notwithstanding that there were 606 factories at work.

That in the last 17 years this factory has helped support the United States Government to the extent of over Forty-four million seven hundred thousand dollars ($44,700,000.00) paid into the U. S. Treasury in Internal Revenue Taxes.

That the pay-roll of this factory is about $200,000 per year or $100,000 per month.

That this factory employs about 3,500 operatives.

That this factory makes such a wonderfully good chew in Climax Plug that many other factories have tried to imitate it in vain, and in despite now try to attract custom by offering larger pieces of inferior goods for the same price.

That this factory nevertheless continues to increase its business every year.

That this factory belongs to and is operated by Yours, very truly, J. KILLARD & CO.

Thanksgiving.
No sound of pestilential tread;
No common cause of fear;
No woe, no voice of panic dread,
Make dark the festal year!
Oh, passing year! Oh, golden year!
May that we soon shall greet;
As rich in gifts as had yon year,
As perfect and complete.

THE MINISTER'S PIE.

A THANKSGIVING STORY.

"Look here, Sally!"
Mrs. Deacon Farrell brushed the flour from her hands, casting meanwhile a complacent eye over the well-filled kitchen table, with its generous array of unbaked pies and cakes, the plump turkey stuffed and trussed ready for the morrow's baking, and the big chicken-pie, to which her fingers had put the finishing touches, as she repeated rather more decidedly:

"Look here, Sally! There's enough chicken left, with the giblets—that I never put in my own pie, because the deacon don't relish 'em—ter make a Thanksgiving pie for the minister's folks. 'Twont need to be very large," she added, in reply to Sally's doubtful look. "Only the minister and his wife—and you can bake it in that smallest yaller dish. Now I'm going up stairs ter look over them rags, an' you make it an' bake it right off so's I can send it over by the deacon."

"Youn," answered Sally, bristly, and catching up the rolling-pin she brought it down with an emphasis upon a lump of dough upon the moulding board.

As the stairway door closed behind her mistress, Sally dropped the rolling-pin, and a look of perplexity crept over her dull face, making it ten times more stolid than usual, while she repeated, in ludicrous bewilderment:

"Giblets! What in all creation, if anybody can tell me, does she mean by them?"

Involuntarily she took a step forward, but checked herself as quickly, while a cunning smile replaced the look of perplexity, and the mottled tranquillity.

"I guess I ain't a-goin' ter confess my ignorance to the deacon's wife and let her have her say, as she always does. 'Two terms ter the academy, Sally, and not know that.' No, ma'am! and while there's a dictionary in the house!"

So, softly creeping into the adjoining sitting-room, she hastily opened a big dictionary on the deacon's writing desk, and began her search for the mysterious word.

"Gib—here tis!" and she read aloud to herself, with an air of triumph, the following definition:

"Those parts of a fowl which are removed before cooking—heart, gizzard, liver, etc."

"That's it!—heart, gizzard, liver and so forth," she repeated joyfully, as she retraced her steps to the kitchen, and began with alacrity, to fill, according to directions, the minister's pie, keeping up meanwhile, a running fire of comment for her own special benefit.

"Six gizzards! Well, that is rather steep, as Dan Weston would say. But I guess the deacon's wife knows; if she don't, ain't none of my business. Six hearts! Them's small, and tuck into the corners handy. Six livers! Seems ter me they don't fill up much," and she glanced with a perplexed air, at a pile of denuded chicken bones that formed her only resource.

"Now, I wonder," with a sudden inspiration, "what that 'and so forth' means! Here's hearts, gizzards and livers, plenty of 'em, but no 'and so forth,' and the pie ain't more than two thirds full yet. It must mean," and she cast a bewildered look at the half-filled pie, "the chicken's legs. I never knew nobody ter put them in a pie, but must be what it means, and they'll just fill up."

No sooner thought than done. In went three pairs of stout yellow legs upon which their unfortunate owners had strutted so proudly only the day before; on went the well rolled dough, covering them from sight, and into the oven went the minister's pie, just as the mistress of the house, re-entered her kitchen, and with an approving glance at the snowy pastry, remarked, encouragingly:

"That pie looks real neat, Sally. I shouldn't wonder if, in time, you came to be quite a cook."

It was Thanksgiving morning, and Miss Patience Pringle stood at the minister's back door. To be sure it was rather early for callers, but Miss Pringle was, as she often boasted, "one of the kind that never stood on ceremony." Indeed, she didn't consider it necessary even to knock before she opened the door, although she was thoughtful enough in opening it to do so softly. The minister's wife was just taking from the oven a newly warmed chicken pie, which she nearly dropped from her hand, so startled was she by the sharp shrill voice that spoke so close to her:

"Good mornin', Mrs. Graham. Hain't been to breakfast yet, I see. We had our half an hour ago. I know my mother used to say that if anybody lost an hour in the mornin', they might chafe it all day, and not catch up with it then."

"That's a good-lookin' pie—pretty rich pastry though, for a chicken pie. I don't never put much shortnin' in anything of that kind. It's rich enough inside to make up. But you're young, an' have got a good many things to learn yet. I run in to see if you could spare me a cup of yeast; mine's soured, and the last batch of bread I made I had to throw it to the dogs."

"Certainly," and a roguish smile fluttered over the fair face of the minister's wife, at this specimen of her meddlesome neighbor's economy. But she had learned a mere lesson of judicious silence, and taking the cup that Miss Patience produced from beneath her shawl, she bade her visitor be seated while she left the room to get the desired article.

As her steps died away Miss Patience noisily arose from her seat and approached the dressing-room, which the pie stood, peered curiously into the aperture in the crust, her sharp face expressing eager curiosity.

"I'll bet you a nippiece she didn't know enough ter put crackers in. I wisht I could get one look, just to satisfy my own mind," she added. And determined the dresser upon which she half hazarded she ran a knife deftly around a small portion of the edge, and inserting four inquisitive fingers, lifted the brown crust and took a glimpse of the contents.

A look of unmitigated disgust passed over her face. Dropping into a convenient chair she actually groaned aloud:

"Well, I never! an' we payin' that man five hundred dollars a year, besides a donation at Christmas. Ough!"

Unsuspecting Mrs. Graham, as she returned with the yeast, was somewhat puzzled by the sudden frostiness of her guest, who hurried out of the house as if some dreadful calamity had haunted it; but when the minister, in carving the pie that the deacon's wife had sent made two curious discoveries almost simultaneously, the reason for Patience's altered demeanor was made plain, and the young pair had a hearty laugh that made the old passage ring like a peal of Thanksgiving bells.

The Tuesday following was the regular day for the weekly sewing circle, and seldom had that interesting gathering proved so lovely and animated as on this occasion, well nigh bursting with some important secret that she was only waiting a fitting opportunity to divulge. That opportunity was not long in coming, for Mrs. Dea. Farrell, who was a constitutional croaker, took occasion to say, in reference to the hard times:

"The deacon had been tryin' ter collect the church tax, and he says he never found money so tight in all the years his lived here. It's as hard to get five dollars now as it used to be to get ten."

"And no wonder," spoke up Miss Patience, with the stony severity of a sphinx. "You can't expect folks to feel like payin' out their money when they see it fairly thrown away an' wasted."

Everybody looked curious, and some of the younger girls began to bridle defiantly. The minister's sweet young wife was evidently a favorite with them, at least.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Mrs. Farrell, pointedly. "Mrs. Graham is young and inexperienced, to be sure; but as the deacon was sayin' only yesterday, she does very well indeed considering."

Patience tossed her head knowingly. "I don't want to say nothing to hurt her, but livin' next door as I do, I can't always help seein' and hearin' things that other folks can't be expected to know about, and when I see and know things like—"

There was an ominous pause, and the deacon's wife asked excitedly:

"Like what?"

"Chicken's legs in pie,"

"She's a born fool," ejaculated the deacon's wife, indignantly, "and I'm thankful for her poor husband's sake that I sent her over one of my pies yesterday. They had to throw her's away, of course, and it's lucky that he didn't have to go without his Thanksgiving breakfast on account of her ignorance an' shiftlessness."

"How did you know about the pie?" asked one of the girls.

Miss Patience bristled defiantly. "That's nobody's business but my own," she retorted, tartly. "I don't go round to find out things that don't concern me. I'd have you know, but when they're thrown right into my face, as you might say, I don't shut my eyes no more'n other folks."

Just here the door opened, and in walked the subject of their conversation, her pretty face glowing with the heat that she had made, and mischievous twinkle in her brown eyes that nobody noticed, so occupied were they in hiding the confusion that her sudden entrance had created.

Walking to the table where most of the ladies were sitting, she saluted them cordially, and then handed out upon the tip of her slender finger a well-worn silver thimble, she said archly—

"Where do you think I found your thimble, Miss Patience?"

So pleased was Miss Patience to regain her lost treasure that she forgot for a moment all assumed dignity and exclaimed joyfully:

"Well, I declare, I am glad to see that thimble once more! I told Mary Jane that I felt sure I had it on my finger when I run into your house Thanksgiving mornin' last year, that, but when I got home, it was at no place to be found. Now where did you find it?"

Her shrill, high voice had attracted the attention of all in the room, and everybody looked up curiously as the minister's wife replied, with an innocent smile:

"In the chicken pie that our good friend here," and she nodded brightly to Mrs. Farrell—"sent me. I left the pie on the dresser when I went down cellar after your yeast, and as soon as I came back I put it on the table, and when my husband cut it there was your thimble in it. How could it have got there? It's certainly very mysterious anyway."

Silence, deadly profound, fell upon the room. How terribly significant to the deacon's wife and her spinster neighbor, fell upon the group.

This was apparently unnoticed by Mrs. Graham, who, with a playful admonition to Miss Patience to take better care of her thimble in future, began an animated conversation with the ladies nearest her, that soon restored the company to their wonted ease and good humor.

But poor Miss Patience! she never heard the last of her lost thimble. While the deacon's wife, to the day of her death, never trusted any hands but her own hands to make Thanksgiving pies for her minister.

Increase of Leprosy.

According to M. Bessier, a member of the French Academy of Medicine, leprosy, far from disappearing by degrees, is spreading rapidly. Since the extension of the French colonial possessions, soldiers, sailors, traders and missionaries have fallen victims to it in large numbers. M. Bessier, therefore, exhorts physicians in all countries to study the full disease, in order to find a means of counteracting its ravages, for it has active focus of infection in every part of the globe. The malarial is transmitted by a bacillus shaped like that found in tuberculosis. An interesting discussion on M. Bessier's report will soon take place in the Academy of Medicine.—[London Standard.]

Conversing With Flowers.

The young people in Tahiti have a custom of conversing with flowers, not unlike the Orientals. If a coldness has sprung up between a young pair, the female will separate a flower, partially down the centre. One half of the split flower is intended to represent the man, and the other half the woman, and it is meant typically to imply that, though separate bodies, they are joined together in the heart. If the lover puts the flower in his hair, it is a sign that he wishes to preserve her favor, but, if he tears it asunder, it is a token that he has lost his regard for her and wishes to be entirely separated.

Fond of Tragedy.

De Garmen is so glad we are to have Booth and Barrett together this year. Are you fond of tragedy, Miss de Payster?

Cincinnati girl—O, indeed, yes. I go down to pa's slaughter-house sometimes twice a week.—[Judge.]

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT.

Illuminative Agencies of the Past and Present.

From the Days of Bonfires to the Era of Electric Light.

Mr. Richard J. Monks, in a recent lecture in Boston on the subject of artificial light, said that the practice of fires in open spaces was common in ancient times. As civilization advanced lamp laws were passed to prohibit bonfires. For centuries bonfires were common with the Celtic natives of Europe especially at festival times. Beacon fires were often used as signals. In Spain taxes were levied to sustain beacons at the time of the Armada. In the Book of Jeremiah, in the Bible, there is an allusion to the fire signal. There was a mast and tar barrel on Beacon Hill. It was never used and was blown down in 1789.

The use of whale oil originated with the Norwegians. In 1689 the Dutch had 260 vessels, employing 14,000 men, in the business. In New England the whales were first caught from small boats. The Indians engaged with avidity in the hunt for whales. In 1839 there were 600 vessels of 300,000 tons burden engaged in the American whale fishery. The argand lamp was first used in 1800. The decline in whale fishery was due to the discovery of oil in Pennsylvania.

Candles were spoken of first in a remote period. Their use really began in the early history of Christianity. As late as the nineteenth century their use was limited. In spite of modern methods the candle is used for certain purposes, and the soft light cannot fail to please the eye. The honor and merit of the first application of coal gas seems to belong to William Murdoch, of Redworth, Cornwall. In 1802 he lighted an extensive manufacturing establishment. London at the time of the artist, Mr. Charles Geyer. The figure IV is superseded by the seconds.—[Jewelry News.]

A Wonderful Watch-Dial.

A gentleman connected with the Woods Watch Company has a wonderfully curious watch-dial. Instead of the Roman numerals to denote the hours, there are eleven small but very distinct silhouette figures, representing a man out with his dog for a day's sport. At seven o'clock he is seen starting out with his gun and dog; at eight o'clock he makes a shot; at nine o'clock he has a sandhill crane which measures as long as himself; at ten o'clock the man and his dog are scared at the sight of a jack-rabbit which is sitting upon his hind legs with his big long ears raised above the bushes; at eleven o'clock the hunter takes a drink, and while in this attitude the dog sits in front of his master, with his nose pointing directly at the flask; at twelve o'clock the sportsman is seen sitting on a stump, and is eating a lunch—the dog is eyeing the piece of bread which the hunter has in his hand. At one o'clock he starts out to fish, and the dog, and so he takes his dog and fishing tackle, and goes to the water; at two o'clock the dog, which is behind his master, has been caught with the hook by an attempt to throw in his line; at three o'clock he and the dog are all straightened out again, and the line is in the water; he has both hands on the pole, and his feet brace on a stump by the water's edge as though he had a tremendous bite; at four o'clock the man has got a big fish on his line, which has pulled him off his feet, and he falls on the dog and doubles him all up, but the man is holding fast to the pole, which is bent almost double; at five o'clock he is all straightened out again; his pole is thrown across his shoulder, and with his fish in the other hand he starts out for home, the dog following behind with his head hanging down, being tired out. The man's name is also painted in the centre of the dial in cursive letters. This dial reflects a great deal of credit upon the artist, Mr. Charles Geyer. The figure IV is superseded by the seconds.—[Jewelry News.]

The South American Gaucho.
The Gaucho (gowcho) of the pampas is the most interesting character on the continent. He is the descendant of the aristocratic Spanish don and the woman of the Guarani race, a species unknown to any other part of the world, whose nearest likeness is the Bedouin of Arabia. He is at once the most indolent and the most active of human beings, for when he is not in the saddle devouring space on the back of a tireless broncho, he is sleeping in staid indifference among his mistresses or gambling with his chums. Half savage and half courtier, the Gaucho is as courteous as he is cruel, and will thrust an air on the native mandolin with the same ease and nonchalance as he will murmur a fellow-being or slaughter a steer. He recognizes no law but his own will and the unwritten code of the cattle range, and all violations of this code are punished by banishment or death. Whoever offends him must fight or fly, and his vengeance is as enduring as it is vigilant. He never shoots, or strikes with his fist, and his only weapons are the short knife, which is never absent from his hand or his belt, the lasso, and the "boleas," implements of his trade, offensive and defensive. A fight between Gauchos is always to the death, and it is the duty of him who kills to see that his victim is decently buried, and the widow and orphans cared for. The widow, if she pleases him, becomes his mistress, and the orphans grow up to be Gauchos, under his tutelage. As superstitious as a Hindoo, peaceable when sober, but regardless of God and man when drunk, as brave as a lion, as active as a panther, with an endurance equal to any test, faithful to his friends, as implacable as a dog to any one who offends him, he has exercised a powerful influence upon the destiny of the Argentine Republic, and retarded civilization until overcome by an increased immigration of foreigners.—[Harper's Magazine.]

Origin of the Sabbath.
The early Christians observed the first day of the week in commemoration of Christ's resurrection. They also observed the Jewish Sabbath in accordance with custom. After they became quite numerous they began to neglect the Jewish day, considering their observance to the other, which they called the Lord's day. In the year 321 the Emperor Constantine officially recognized the day by an edict ordering that all work should cease on it except necessary husbandry. The Emperor Theodosius about 380 made all legal-business should be put aside on that day. So it came to be the one day of rest for Christians.—[Inter-Ocean.]

What Patty Forgot.
Patty makes a long visit at auntie's house one summer. She was due to tell her that the upper drawer of a low bureau was quite a reach for her arms. The next summer she came again. The first time she went to the upper drawer, she called out:

"O auntie, what have you done to your bureau! Have you had it cut down?" Patty forgot to mention that she had spent a whole year in growing tall.—[Youth's Companion.]

Elephants Carrying Lumber.

Lazy and clumsy-looking as the elephant appears in our menageries, where it is merely an object of curiosity, in Asia it is as useful an animal as the horse, and is, indeed, employed in a greater variety of ways.

There are few, if any, tasks which a horse can be trusted to perform without careful and constant guidance; whereas the elephant is frequently given so much independence of action as a man would have for the same work. This is notably the case in the lumber-yards of Rangoon and Maulein, where the entire operation of moving and piling the heavy timber, is performed by male elephants with any special supervision by the keepers.

The logs to be moved are teakwood, which is very heavy. They are cut into lengths of twenty feet, with a diameter or perhaps a square, of about a foot. An elephant will go to a log, kneel down, thrust his tusks under the middle of it, test it to see if it is evenly balanced, and then rise to it and easily carry it to the pile which is being made. Placing the log carefully on the pile in its proper place, the sagacious animal will step back a few paces and measure with his eye to determine whether or not the log needs pushing one way or another. It will then make any necessary alteration of position. In this way, without a word of command from its mahout, or driver, it will go on with its work.

To do any special task, it must, of course, be directed by the mahout; but it is marvelous to see how readily this great creature comprehends its instructions, and how ingeniously it makes use of its strength. If a log too heavy to be carried is to be moved a short distance, the elephant will bend low, place his great head against the end of the log and then with a sudden exertion of strength and weight throw his body forward and fairly push the log along; or, to move the log any great distance, he will encircle it with a chain and drag his load behind him.

As a rule, however, the work of dragging is done by the female elephants, since, having no tusks, they can not carry logs as the male elephants do. A man could hardly display more judgment in the adjustment of the rope or chain around a log, nor could a man with his two hands manage an elephant more skillfully than do they with their trunks.—[St. Nicholas.]

Combs in Olden Times.

Combs, both for use and ornament, are of very great antiquity, says the historian. The Egyptians, Greeks and Romans made their combs from hard wood, generally box wood, and this material was used for ages, till horn, ivory, gold and shell were substituted. The gold combs of the Middle Ages, worn as ornaments or to support the hair, were frequently adorned with precious stones. The horny, over-lapping plates of the hawk-bill were known to the ancient Romans, who used them in laying furniture and in other ornamental work. The tortoise shell afterward became an important article of commerce. The invention of vulcanized india rubber about 1800, and the hard rubber resulted in the discovery that it is one of the best and cheapest materials ever used for making combs.

EDITORIAL.

That recent lynching of a white man by negroes in South Carolina is causing a diversity of opinion from the press and people of that State. Some condemn it as an unlawful and cruel act, punishable to the full extent of the law, while others are outspoken saying that if the man was really guilty, he deserved the fate meted out to him; that the virtue and honor of the negro women must be protected as well as that of the whites.

It is a fact that the negro is a very invariable race, ready to pattern after any act of the white man, and the white men of that State have never hesitated to perform a similar act where the exigency of the case demanded it. They have never been brought to justice for their work, and the negroes believing they would be safe and protected from the law in the same manner, did not think for a moment of the unlawful act they were committing, and the chance they were running of making themselves amenable to the law.

Several of the lynchers have been arrested and are in jail. What will be done with them remains to be seen.

The State of Alabama has let out all of its convicts on ten year contracts to the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company. The number about 600 and the average price is $13 per month each, which is $4 more than the State has ever before received. The convicts will all be worked in the great Pratt coal mines, near Birmingham.

The Woolfolk property is about to be plunged into litigation. The heirs of Mrs. Woolfolk claim the property, while the children of Capt. Woolfolk by his first wife also claim it. There is prospect of a long law suit over the property.

Bones of the Marietta and North Georgia Railroad to the amount of three million three hundred thousand dollars have been placed in New York and Augusta for sale, to complete the road from Marietta to Knoxville and Atlanta.

The same talk heard so often about war in Europe, is now again becoming familiar, and if the daily papers of America are to be believed, Europe will soon be the scene of many battles.

The year 1887, just expired, will be remembered as having concluded the death of more distinguished men and women than any year known except when war and disease were raging.

The Brakeman at Church.

The Burlington Hawkeye gets off the following good thing on "The Brakeman at Church":

On the road once more, with Lebanon fading away in the distance, the fat passenger drumming idly on the window pane, the cross passenger sound asleep, and the tall, thin passenger reading "Gen. Grants tour around the World," and wondering why "Green's August Flower" should be printed above the doors of "A. B. B. Temple at Danvers." To me comes the brakeman, and seating himself on the arm of a seat says: "I want to church yesterday." "Yes!" I said with that interested infection that asks for more, "And what church did you attend?" "Which do you guess?" he asked. "Some union mission church?" I inquired.

"No," he said, "I don't like to run on these branch roads very much. I don't often go to church, and when I do, I want to run on the main line, where your run is regular and you go on schedule time, and don't have to wait on connections. I don't like to run on a branch. Good enough, but don't like it."

"Episcopal?" I guessed.

"Limited express," he said, "all palace cars, and two dollars extra for a seat, fast time, and only stop at the big stations. Nice big, but too expensive for a brakeman. All train men in uniform, coal-tor's punch and lantern silver plated and no train boys allowed. Then the passengers are allowed to talk back to the conductor, and it makes them too free and easy. No, I couldn't stand the palace cars. Didn't go through. Don't often hear of a receiver being appointed for that line. Some might like people travel on it, too."

"Unionists?" I guessed.

"Broad gauge," said the brakeman, "does too much complimentary business. Everybody travels on a pass. Conductor doesn't get a fare once in fifty miles. Stops at all flag stations, and won't run into anything but a union depot. No smoking on or in the train. Steamers are rather vague, though, and the trainmen don't get along well with the passengers. No, I don't go to the Universalist, though I know some awfully good men who run on that road."

"Presbyterian?" I asked.

"Narrow gauge," said the brakeman, "springs track, straight as a rule; tunnel right through a mountain rather than go around it; spirit-level grade; passengers have to show their tickets before they get on the train. Mighty strict road but the cars are a little narrow; have to sit one in a seat and no room in the aisle to dance. Then there is no stop-over tickets allowed; get to go straight through to the station you're ticketed for, or you can't get on at all. When the cars are full, no extra coaches; cars are built at the shops to hold just so many, and nobody else allowed on. But you don't often hear of an accident on that road. It's run right up to the rules."

"Maybe you joined the Free Thinkers?" I said.

"Scrab road," said the brakeman, "dirt road-bed and no ballast, no time-card and no train dispatchers. All trains run wild, and every engineer makes his own time, just as he pleases. Smoke if you want to; kind of go-as-you-please road. Too many side tracks, and every switch wide open all the time, with the switchman sound asleep and the target lamp dead out. Get on as you please and off when you want to. Don't have to show their tickets, and the conductor isn't expected to do anything but amuse the passengers. My sir, I was offered a pass, but I don't like the line. I don't like to travel on a road that has no terminus. Do you know, sir, I asked a div on superintendent where the road runs to, and he said he hoped to die if he knew. I asked him if the general superintendent could tell me, and he said he didn't believe that he had a general superintendent, and if he had he didn't know anything more about the road than the passengers. I asked him who he reported to and he said 'Nobody.' I asked a conductor who he gets his orders from, and he said 'I didn't take orders from any living man or dead ghost.' And when I asked the engineer who he got his orders from, he said 'He'd like to see any body give him orders. I'd run that train to suit myself, or he'd run her in the ditch.' Now you see, sir, I'm a railroad man, and I don't care to run on a road that has no time, or makes no connections, runs nowhere, and has no superintendent. It may be all right, but I've railroaded too long to understand it."

"Maybe he went to the Congregational church?" I said.

"Popular road," said the brakeman, "an old road, too; one of the very oldest in this country. Good road-bed and comfortable cars. Well managed road, too; directors don't interfere with division superintendents and train orders. Road's mighty popular, but it's pretty independent, too. Yes, didn't one of the division superintendents down East discontinue one of the oldest stations on this line two or three years ago? But it's mighty pleasant road to travel on. Always has such a splendid class of passengers."

"Did you try the Methodist?" I said.

"Now you're shouting," he said with some enthusiasm. "Rio road eh? Fast time and plenty of passenger cars. Engines carry a power of steam, and don't you forget it, steam gauge shows a hundred and enough all the time. Lively road when the conductor shows will abound. You can hear him to the next station. Every train-light shines like a head-light. Stop-over tickets are given on all through tickets; passengers can drop off the train as often as he likes, do the station two or three times and hop on the next revival train that comes thundering along. Good, wholesome, comfortable road, too; directors don't interfere with division superintendents and train orders. Road's mighty popular, but it's pretty independent, too. Yes, didn't one of the division superintendents down East discontinue one of the oldest stations on this line two or three years ago? But it's mighty pleasant road to travel on. Always has such a splendid class of passengers."

"Perhaps you tried the Baptist?" I guessed once more.

"All all," said the brakeman, "she's a day, ain't she? River road, a beautiful curve; sweeps around anything to keep close to the river, but it's all steel rail and rock ballast, single track all the way and not a side track from the roundhouse to the terminus. It takes a heap of water to run it, though double tanks at every station, and there ain't an engine in the shops that can pull a pound or run a mile with less than two gauges. But run through a lovely country; these river roads always do; run on one side and hills on the other, and it's a steady climb up grade all the way till the run ends where the foundation of the shore begins. Yes, sir, I'll take the river road any time for a lovely trip, sure connections and good time and no prairie dust blowing in at the windows. And yesterday, when the conductor came around for the tickets with a little basket, I didn't ask him to pass me, but I paid my fare like a gentleman, twenty-five cents for my hour's run, and a little concert by the passengers assembled. I tell you, Pilgrim, you take the river and when you want."

But just here the loud whistle from the engine announced a station, and the brakeman hurried to the door and said: "Zionsville! This train makes no stops between here and Indianapolis!"

THE SOUTH AHEAD.

Professor Cullen Takes Up the Cudgel or the South as Against Canada—The Wonderful Resources, Etc.

Constitution.

Mr. J. D. Cullen, the well known mining engineer, is thoroughly impressed with Georgia's greatness, and when he talks about her mineral resources he grows eloquent. Yesterday he was in conversation with a representative of The Constitution, and the subject of iron ore was brought up.

"I have noticed," said he, "in recent issues of the Toronto World a controversy between Professor C. M. Dobson and a Mr. Ledyard, in which the latter named gentleman speaks disparagingly of the 'new south' as an iron district, compared with Canada. As an Englishman and a 'Britisher' I here take the cudgel in Professor Dobson's behalf."

"Tell me something about it, professor."

"I have spent six years in the Piedmont region of the new south, in examining and reporting on iron and manganese properties for English and American capitalists. As to professor Dobson's capabilities I need say little, as he is known far and near to the world in his profession. He studied in the 'field' with one of the best mining engineers that England ever produced—Richard Rickards, of the firm of Rickards, Bros., London. He has examined mines throughout the United States, Africa, Australia and Europe. I notice Mr. Ledyard has taken exceptions to Mr. Dobson's remarks on the ground that he was not long from England and was not competent to give an opinion. I will not go to any length in answering this calumny, but will say that during his recent visit to the Southern States I accompanied him through the iron district, and found him, from his work to be thoroughly competent to make a true report, and from his remarks before the Commercial Union club, of Toronto, that he knew exactly what he was talking about. I believe in Professor Dobson's right to report favorably on our iron districts, as he has visited and examined them. I gain say Mr. Ledyard's right to contradict him, as he is to us a complete stranger, and is talking of something of which he knows little, except from hearsay. I will leave the question of 'which is the more competent' to future developments, and will now prove by facts that Professor Dobson's remarks before the Commercial Union club, of Toronto, were true."

"Does Mr. Ledyard assert that iron can be manufactured more cheaply in Canada than in the southern states?"

"Yes, and I would advise him to read on the subject of iron, as it is apparent that he is ignorant of the fact that iron is manufactured in south cheaper by far than in the north. For instance, take Cherokee, Lumpkin, Bartow, Polk, Cobb, Whitfield, Fulton, Catoosa, DeKalb, Floyd, Fannin and Gilmer counties, all of Georgia; these counties have by far the largest quantities and finest quality of Bessemer ores in America. Samples from these counties, brought directly under my notice, average from 62 to 71 per cent with scarcely a trace of phosphorus. We have also the magnificent specular ore equal in quality and quantity to the island of Elba in the Mediterranean, with magnificent ores and a very high grade of hematite. Towns, Bartow, Whitfield, Floyd, Catoosa and Polk counties have the finest manganese or pyrolusite known. Manganese is being mined and shipped to Carnegie Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., and to other large manufacturers in quantities. But in a short time we will have ferro-manganese furnaces situated in the center of the manganese belt, where it will be manufactured into pig and shipped to our steel plants in Birmingham, Chattanooga, Atlanta and other southern cities, where steel plants are already and others on the eve of erection. You can easily see by this we have the finest of iron ores, in great abundance, with the advantages of cheap labor and mild climate. Our ores can be mined and placed on the cars at from fifty to sixty cents per ton. Our transportation northward by rail or sea is very cheap, and soon will have the benefit of the Tennessee river, as the government will soon complete the improvements at mussel shoals. You can perceive when Mr. Ledyard said he was certain Canada could compete with the 'New South,' he seemed to have overlooked our natural advantages, and most assuredly have forgotten of the existence of the great coal fields of the south, and where the lime, coal and iron run parallel through several states. It can be seen by this that all the advantages, as far as cheapness is concerned, are in favor of the south. We do not have to ship our ores to the north to be manufactured; on the contrary, we can and are manufacturing it ourselves. We are shipping manufactured iron to the north cheaper than it was ever made before."

"What about the prospects in the South?"

"English capitalists and the iron kings of the north have been purchasing lands and mines throughout the south for the last two years. In Birmingham, Ala. there are two steel plants in the course of erection to cost $200,000 each, and two already erected at Chattanooga. Seventeen miles below Birmingham there is a steel plant about to begin operations in a town known as Bessemer. Two years ago this place was a wilderness, today it has a population of 5,000."

"You may take any of our southern cities, and you will find that their growth has been phenomenal. Atlanta, for instance, ten years ago had only a population of from ten to fifteen thousand, to day the 'Queen and pride' of the 'New South,' she stands with a population of from seventy to eighty thousand."

"Chattanooga is another example of rapid growth. A few years past and it was nothing but a small town, today it is a great city, and bids fair to soon rival our own Atlanta. A stranger passing along the bank of the Tennessee river, and noticing the blast furnaces, all in operation, would not hesitate in calling it the Pittsburgh of the South. I only mention these facts as a proof of how fast the iron districts are developing, and I think prove conclusively that iron can be manufactured at a great deal cheaper than any other part of America. What I would like to know is if Mr. Dobson's remarks were untrue, how is it that the poorest English and northern capitalists are investing their money in the 'New South?' Certainly Mr. Ledyard does not believe these men would put their money in a losing investment. Mr. Ledyard bases everything on certain contingencies. He claims if the tariff was removed Canada could compete with the southern states. I think this a very erroneous idea. Here we have cheap labor, and a climate where transportation is open the whole year. In Canada the labor is higher and the transportation hampered, if not entirely closed, for half the year by cold and stormy weather."

vs. R. A. Evans.) case in Lunenburg

Superior Court. October term 1887.

It appearing to the court, that R. A. Evans, the said defendant, has not been served as required by law.

It is therefore ordered that the said R. A. Evans, the mortgagee named in said mortgage, pay into this court on or before the last day of this month, 1888, the principal and interest due on said notes and the cost of this proceeding; or in default thereof the Court will order as to justice shall appear. It is further ordered that the said R. A. Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co., Gentlemen—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as J. C. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. I have prescribed it success in all cases, and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take according directions.

Yours truly,

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT DALLONOGA, GA.
DALLONOGA, GA., - Mar. 30, 1888.

March, 1888.
Two weeks of March 1888, will long be remembered by the people of this age. The effect of the cyclone throughout the state in the destruction of life and property will make this month remarkable for generations to come. The fearful railroad disaster at Blacksher last week some seventeen persons were killed and thirty wounded and great loss of property of the railroad and persons on board. The distinction of property was immense. The town of Calhoun in Gordon county, is a complete wreck, and not a town in the track of the storm escaped loss. Dahlonega has been spared from these fearful storms and we should all be thankful to the Great Architect for our escape from these terrible disasters while hardly a section in this country has been so fortunate. We are thankful that our dear ones have not been thrown out of their cozy beds in the rain and darkness with suffering and death.

Dawson Court.
Judge Brown writes to the Dawsonville Advertiser:—I received the petition which the members of the bar sent in regard to the time of holding your court. Replying I have to say that I did not think of Lumpkin court when I wrote the order to adjourn, yours, and can not now make the change without going to Dawsonville on third Monday in April, and then adjourning over to the first of May. The Supreme court has decided that a Judge can not adjourn a court without being present except for Providential cause. It occurs to me that we could hold your court in about four days, and that Attorneys who have cases at Lumpkin could get them passed that long and I could give the Dahlonega bar leave of absence.
But I will see and decide on some course.
My daughter is still very sick. She has not slept more than two hours for the last forty eight, and we are all weighed down with grief and sorrow.

Death of Ordinary Taylor of Dawson County.
We are informed by Mr. J. B. Thomas, from information gathered in Gainesville last Sunday, that Judge James S. Taylor of Dawson county, died last Saturday. We learned from the Dawsonville Advertiser of the 22nd inst, that he was quite sick. He died from the effects of typhoid pneumonia. He was a man highly esteemed by the people of his county and this sad news will be received with much sorrow by his friends throughout this section. He was a cousin of Judge Gaston, of Gainesville.

—Mayor Hall, after an absence of a week or more is again at his post. He has been on a considerable trip North and fortunately escaped all the railroad disasters and cyclones. He is looking well.

THE ELECTRIC WELL.—This great resort for invalids is attracting great attention throughout the country. It has reached this point and Mr. Ambrose Jenkins an old man and resident of Dahlonega for forty years, being afflicted with a burning sensation that almost renders him, has gone down to try its curative properties.
He went by Gainesville and applied to Dr. Tom Meach for one of his celebrated trusses for himself who has been suffering, also, with the worst case of haemorrhoids on record. Dr. Tom, assisted by several of the leading Physicians of the city, fitted him up all right and at last accounts he was on his way to the Electric well and was getting along fine.

—Mrs. Beard is quite sick and Dr. Chapman was called to see her, on Wednesday last.

Burlington Engineers are Beaten.

Chicago, March 22.—The Burlington's former engineers are thoroughly sick of the strike, and the indications are that in a few days they will be begging the company to take them back. The festival of St. Paul men to strike through sympathy was the final blow. All the members of the grievance committee, except those of the Burlington committee, have gone home. The latter will break up this week. The men admit that the brotherhood has sustained a crushing defeat. Chief Arthur says that he wants to go home and is advising the strikers to acknowledge themselves beaten and appeal to the mercy of the company. The Rock Island and Northwestern engineers will begin handling "Q" freight on Saturday. It will cost the brotherhood $150,000 monthly to support the strikers.

ESSENTIAL STRANGE GOODS, of every variety, style and price, just opened at Murphy & Co's. They are simply exquisite, and must be seen to be appreciated. That Mr. Murphy is one of the latest buyers in the state is abundantly proven by the lovely stock of fancy and dress goods of every description that he is now opening and is receiving. His counters will no doubt be crowded with customers, as his goods are very attractive.—Eagle.

We call the readers attention to Mr. Murphy & Co's, new advertisement in the present issue. We called at their store on last Monday morning and a more beautiful line of goods and them displayed in the neatest of style to attract attention, we never saw. Go and see them when you go to Gainesville and if you have any cash with you, you will certainly be induced to leave some with them.

A gentleman once saw a boy peeling the bark from one of his choice trees with a hatchet. The gentleman tried to catch the boy, but the latter was too quick for him, so the farmer changed his tactics. "Come here, my little son," he said in a soft, fatherly voice with counterfeited friendliness; come here to me a minute. I want to tell you something." "Not yet," replied the recipient. "Little pops like me don't need to know everything."

The Storm.

ACHARIA Ga., March 20th, '88.
Mr. Editor.—The cyclone on Tuesday night, at 12 o'clock, destroyed much property.

It destroyed the orchard and garden of Mrs. S. W. Gayden. It also, destroyed Mr. Arch Gayden's barn stables and fences. Old Mrs. Gayden's house top was blown off. Dick Harden's house top was blown off. Bill Beck fence blown away.

Miss Amanda Smith was at Bill Beck's and was badly injured. Bud Brackets damages is about two hundred dollars. James Loggins lost two hundred pounds of fence. Fortunately, for this section, no lives were lost.

NIMBLEWILL Ga., March 20th, '88.
Mr. Editor.—Owing to cold winds sundays services at Nimblewill Church was short.

Rev. J. W. Parks cut two of his fingers very near off last Saturday. The farmers are at work like they meant business.

Some of the boys are out of heart about the new R. R. up Nimblewill. Satterfield and Couch are going at business right. They keep every thing the people want.

We had singing and preaching at J. P. Smith's Sunday night.

JACKSONVILLE, March 10.—A fire last night, which was thought to be under control at 9 o'clock, burst out with renewed fury at 9:30 and totally destroyed Hazelton's block, at the foot of Laurel street built three years ago at a cost of $40,000.

For three hours there was great danger of the fire spreading across Laurel street to the Times-Union building and north to Bay, but the heroic efforts of the firemen and citizens checked the flames at midnight. The principal losses, besides Hazelton's, are: Drew Hardware Company stock about $90,000, insurance about $30,000; George E. Wilson, agent for the Family fertilizer, loss about $45,000, insurance about $40,000; William Clarke, plumber, loss $7,000, insurance $4,000. Total loss about $180,000, insurance about $89,000.

All persons who are in arrears to this office, for subscription, who reside outside of the county, their names will be stricken from the list, after the first issue in April. We would be glad for our friends to pay up and renew; but, owing to the stringency of the times, and the low price of subscription, we are necessarily compelled to adhere to the cash in advance system.

We have been presented by old brother, Johnny Jarrard, through Mrs. Meaders, with a hen's egg that is a funny and strange freak of nature. It is about as large as a man's finger and about two inches long. We will account for this strange specimen of hen fruit. Mrs. Meaders will show it to you.

POISONED.—Dr. Jones was called to Gadsden on Tuesday evening last to two families that were supposed to be poisoned. Up to this writing to-day, Thursday, the Dr. has not returned. Consequently we know nothing of the particulars. We will give a report of the case in our next issue.

As we go to press, Dr. Jones has returned. The poisoned people are all out of danger, except two. The poison was in the meal. Full particulars next week.

Hotel Arrivals.

BURNSIDE HOTEL.—John Franklin, Idaho, Ala. George W. Slaton and John Mappin, Cleveland, Ga. G. A. Bishop, Dawsonville, Ga. G. L. Fitz, Tate Ga. W. F. Baker, Atlanta, Ga. A. R. Hightower, Atlanta, Ga. Thos. W. Wright, Urbana, Ill. S. L. Quimby, Walboro N. Y. A. F. Wright, Urbana, Ill. Rev. W. P. Smith, Atlanta, Ga. J. J. Coggin, Atlanta, Ga.

Geo. N. Lester.—It is said that a sign board, with the words: "George N. Lester, Attorney at Law, Cumming, Georgia, was picked up near Atlanta the morning after the storm. The party who found it promised to bring it up to town, but he was so badly torn up by the storm, he has not been able to do so.

It has been raining ever since last Sunday and the river was so high on last Wednesday evening that it was considered dangerous to undertake to boat the mail across Leather's Ford. All the water courses are very full and if it keeps on raining we will certainly be correct in reporting the largest freshet in many years. Look out August, the water is coming.

Highwater bridge at Davis's is gone. Also, the bridge at Jay Bearden's bridge is damaged.

The rain has ceased and the sun shines. Peaches are all right. Apples have not bloomed.

Ten Cent Store.—While in Gainesville, a few days ago, we dropped into the ten cent store to see how everything looked. The proprietor was as busy as a bee, selling various articles and we were so much pleased, with the great bargains that we made a few purchases. When you visit Gainesville drop in to the ten cent store and you will be sure to leave some of your cash.

BARNES EVANS & Co.—We give place to-day to the advertisement of the above named firm. It came in too late to occupy the space reserved on our first page. They advertise an immense stock fresh and beautiful in every particular. Mr. Barnes has just returned from New York where he has been for several weeks, and all their goods were bought with the greatest care and they intend to give their customers the benefit of close buying for cash. See their advertisement and call upon them when you visit Gainesville.

The New Commissary has moved from the Howard to the Sifton corner on the public square. They have one of the best line of goods in town, consisting of Groceries, Hats & Caps, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Clothing and Hardware. They carry a nice line of Fancy groceries, such as Queen Olives, Cucumber, Salad Dressing, Yarmouth, Macaroni, canned Asparagus, Lobster, Stumps, &c.

They sell the celebrated Perfect Pasty Flour, the best made, which they are selling at the same price of Family Flour. They have a separate department for clothing a good line of ready made clothing always on hand. Also clothing made to order and they are selling higher than ever known in Dahlonega. Mar. 30th, '88.

Henry Smith, was plowing a mule, a few days ago, near Porter Springs. The mule became frightened and ran away with the plow. The plow struck the mule and tore out its bowels and they were horribly mutilated and trampled upon. It died at once.

HOME INDUSTRY.—Miss Fannie Baker has just completed a quilt mat with knitting needles that far exceed anything we have ever seen of the kind. She was just two months, at odd times, knitting it, and it must be seen to be appreciated. It reflects much credit of the ingenuity of this little lady.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—We solicit correspondence from all sections of the county, giving the news and industry of neighborhoods, accidents and everything that is of interest to the general reader, and we reserve the right to strike from all such communications anything of a personal character liable to injure the feelings of any one.

PILLS, PILLS.—We called on Goodman—McQuire a few nights ago for something for a sick headache. He said he had it, and exhibited to us a bottle of white sugar-coated pills. What kind are they? We asked. He told us they were catarrh pills. How do you take them? Just like you would eat whortleberries said Goodman—give you all you need for a sickle. We traded and took a handful and they were as sweet as sugar. They are equal to Dr. Howard's secret powders. They are more certain than an alarm clock and don't go fogging about but attend strictly to business.

Sick people, at the public generally had better be careful how they call upon them commissary fellows for things, for Goodman will put such a nice polish on his representation of things that you will buy before you know it, and Bad High tower will sell you a bottle of Spaulding's Prepared Glue and sweats Asphaltum. We never intend to call upon those fellows when we are in distress any more. Them Commissary fellows will "poison" somebody by feeding with them concentrated chemicals.

We have received a copy of a neat little Seminary Signal, published in Gainesville, Ga., in the interest of the Georgia Seminary, and in it we find the following compliment to one of our Dahlonega young ladies: Miss Maud Webb, one of our Juniors distinguished herself in the Normal class last Friday, by the ease and thoroughness with which she traced the subject of "Winds." Trade winds, and land and sea breezes were thoroughly discussed, and Miss Maud showed a knowledge of her subject, which was really surprising. This class is the means of diffusing more general knowledge among the girls than any other department of the Seminary.

As will be seen by card in this issue. We are glad to state that we are to have a visit soon from Dr. J. A. Wills of Gainesville, Ga. It will be remembered that Dr. Wills is a graduate of our Dahlonega College class of — and all our good citizens know him. He is a student of Dr. R. B. Adair of Gainesville, Ga., which is of itself a sufficient guarantee of his proficiency in Dentistry. He has just graduated with high honors, and entered into the practice of Dentistry as a partner of Dr. Adair. It will be remembered that Dr. Adair was the regular Dentist for our college from its foundation to within the last two years his business increased so much at home he was compelled to discontinue his regular visits, since that time we have had visits from his young brother, but we all know the old Doctor and feel that his intention to renew his circuit practice, and make regular visits to our town, will be hailed with delight by our citizens and students.

Escorted to the Door.

On last Saturday evening we happened to step into Joe Logan's store in Gainesville and we met coming out of the store, closely escorted, by one of the salesmen to see which case he was going to fall through, a seedy drunk man who looked like he had been blown there by the cyclone. He lodged against the door facing and we lodged against the other to see what disposition he was going to make of himself. Right in front, on the side walk, was a drunken Irishman, with an old rebel cap, looking seedy and dirty. This fellow attracted the attention of the one standing in the door, and he asked "Who in the — is that fellow standing out there."

That is Bill Mahaley, from Scarsboro North, Carolina.

"Well he the — ugliest man ever I saw."

Oh! If we could see ourselves as others see us when drunk, we certainly would never get drunk again.

Cane Creek News.

CANE CREEK, GA., March 20th, '88. Mr. Editor—I thought I would give you a few sketches from our district. The farmers are preparing for fine crops this year. They are on a boom. Every one is trying to see how much he can do. The storm here did no damage to person or property, but tore down much timber in its track.

Mr. R. R. Stargel is getting a large garden in shape and intends to furnish the people with vegetables.

Our little preacher, Rev. J. J. Shad, paid the Hickory Flat Church a visit last Saturday and Sunday and the people were much pleased with him.

Mr. Wm. Bryan has bought land and is improving it.

Mr. A. T. Stargel, killed a pig, eight months old, that weighed one hundred and thirty-three pounds.

Leap year has come and there is a heap of daisy girls up here. Come up boys. This is the girls year, though, you must not be too fast. W. B.

DENTISTRY.

Dr. J. A. Wills of the firm of Adair & Wills, Dentists; Gainesville, Ga., will be in Dahlonega about the last of this month (March) and remain a few days for the purpose of practicing Dentistry. Office at same of our convenient Hotels or Boarding Houses.

L. B. LEWIS, Prop.

A special to Atlanta Telegraph from Atlanta March 13th, 1888.

Mrs. Jennie France, of Lake Pippin, Wis., was arrested here on the streets today by Detective Buchanan of the police force. Mrs. France ran away from Lake Pippin on the 27th of November last with a Methodist minister by the name of Tisdell. Mrs. France left her husband and two sons behind her and brought with her a daughter ten years of age. Tisdell abandoned his wife, who was a confirmed invalid from an attack of consumption, from which she soon died. They came South and located near Talaposa, where Tisdell has been teaching school, assisted in the latter by Mrs. France. They reached Talaposa about the first of December.

Monday last Mrs. France arrived at Atlanta from Temple where she had been visiting friends for several days. When she left Temple she directed her mail to be forwarded to her at Atlanta. Detective Buchanan, with the view of locating her, had it watched. This morning Mrs. France visited the post-office. Instead of going in and getting her mail she sent a boy after it. The clerk asked the boy where Mrs. France was living, and was told that she was boarding at 220 Boulevard. Detective Buchanan failed to find her there upon calling, but later in the day picked her up on the streets.

While this maneuvering was going on the husband of the woman had been in Atlanta in search of his wife.

Mrs. France was escorted to a boarding house where her husband called upon her. He wants her to return with him, and it is more than probable that she will accede to his request and return with her husband to their home in Lake Pippin, Wisconsin.

A number of South Carolina planters are claiming that soda is a sure cure for hog cholera. One says that by the use of soda (bicarbonate) alone, as soon as the first symptoms of the disease were noticed, he cured it. Another used soda and salt together, mixed in moderate quantity with the food. An old Kentucky breeder of swine places salt first in importance as a preventive of cholera, and believes that salt, of all substances, is the best promoter of digestion as well as an antidote against worms. This breeder has appointed the plan of salting all his animals in water tight troughs, keeping a supply of salt on hand continually. He also feeds some charcoal with the salt to swine that are closely penned, and gives ashes occasionally under all conditions.

HIS BEVIL BLOWS.

Death of a Colored Woman at Forsyth from a Beating by Her Husband.

Special Telegram to Macon Telegraph. Forsyth, March 22.—The coroner held an inquest this evening over the body of Sarah Brown, colored, who died suddenly this morning, and the jury returned a verdict charging George L. Brown her husband, with manslaughter. The physician said that death ensued from internal hemorrhage, caused from a blow. Brown is in jail.

ADVICE TO BOYS.

"You are made to be kind," says Horace Mann, "generous and magnanimous. If there is a boy in school who was club foot, don't let him know you ever saw it. If there is a poor boy with ragged clothes, don't talk about rags when he is within hearing. If there is a lame boy, assign him some parts of the game which does not require running. If there is a hungry one, give him part of your dinner. If there is a dull one, help him to get it less. If there is a bright one be not envious of him; for if one boy is proud of his talents, and another is envious of him, there are two great wrongs, and no more talents than before. If a larger or stronger boy has injured you and is sorry for it, forgive him and request the teacher not to punish him. All the school will show by their countenances how much better it is than to have 'rest day.'"

A Sympathizing Brother.

(From the Arkansas Traveller.)

The congregation of a church at Elk Rock were much shocked upon learning that their preacher had departed under most discreditable circumstances. On the following Sunday it seemed to be the aim of nearly every one to rush up the aisles, and under great restraint, many uninteresting conversations were held, merely to prove that the church could rise above sensational gossip. Just before the services were closed Brother Elijah P. Brookrook arose and said:

"Brethren and sisters, since we last met in this house something which seems to have cast a gloom over this congregation has occurred. We were all much attached to our minister in fact we loved him, and I now propose that we offer up a prayer for the wanderer."

A sensational wave swept over the audience. Another brother arose and turning to Elijah P. Brookrook, said:

"I am astonished that you should desire this congregation to pray for our erring minister—you, above all others."

"Why?"

"Because he ran away with your wife."

"Yes, I know," Elijah replied, "and that is the reason why I think that he will need our prayers."

Generosity of Newspapers.

"Each year every local newspaper gives from $500 to $5,000 in free lines for the benefit of the community in which it is located," said Judge Davis not long before he died. "No other agency can or will do this. The editor, in proportion to his means, does more for his town than any other ten men, and in all fairness, man and man, he ought to be supported, not because you may happen to like him or admire his writings, but because a local paper is the best investment a community can make. It may not be brilliant or crowded with great thoughts, but financially, it is more of benefit to the community than a preacher or teacher. Understand us now, we do not mean morally or intellectually but financially, and yet on the moral question you will find the majority of local papers on the right side of the question. To day the editors of local papers do the most work for the least money of any men on earth."

Apt Illustrations.

The Rev. Dr. Wharton has been conducting a series of gospel meetings at the second Baptist Church, in Atlanta. He preaches with great power and the meetings have been a most wonderful in the interest taken in them.

Dr. Wharton's power of illustration is remarkable fine, and we have been much impressed, only with the fervor of his preaching, but with the appropriateness with which he frequently illustrates his points with incidents.

For instance in one of his sermons he cited the case of a man who had been an atheist who had ridiculed the Bible and Christianity, and who had gathered quite a school of friends around him. He was taken very sick, and was informed that he could not survive. Some of his conferees called to see him, and one of them said:

"Now, John, you must hold on. You must not turn your back on your own teaching and on our crowd. You must stand up to the end. Remember what you have been arguing in the past and hold on, John, hold on."

Turning to his promoter he exclaimed,—"How can I hold on when there is nothing to hold to!"

Our readers can readily make the application.

In another sermon he was referring to the trust which Christians should have in the Lord, and recalled an instance in his own experience of a little child that was very fond of him. He was going through a very dark room with the little one and purposely got a step or two ahead. He then asked the child, "Are you not afraid in here?"

"No," said the youngster, "I'm not 'fraid, 'cos 'oss wif me."

MOTHER'S SALARY.

My Mother gets me up, builds the fire, gets my breakfast, and sends me off, said a bright youth.

What then said the reporter.

Then she gets my father up, and gets his breakfast, and sends him off, then gets the other children their breakfast, and sends them to school, and then she and the baby have their breakfast.

How old is the baby?

Oh, she's most two but she can walk and talk as well as any of us. Are you well paid?

I get two dollars a week; father gets two dollars a day.

How much does your mother get?

With a bewildered look the boy said, Mother? Why she don't work for anybody.

I thought you said she worked for all of you?

Oh, yes, for all of us; she does, but there ain't no money in it.—America Farmer.

The Confederate generals invited by Gen. Sherman to attend the Dalmatonic dinner, given in honor of Gen. Grant's birthday, are Longstreet, Gordon, Buckner, Mahone, Mosby, Johnston and Fitz Lee. Of the invitation the Chicago Inter-Ocean, one of the most aggressive of Republican organs, says: "These were all in the Confederate army and fought against Grant, but they are all progressive men, and, they Gen. Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox, they buried the cause they had defended so ably, and turned their eyes to the future. They were all admirers of Grant and were sincere mourners at his funeral."

How the Cows Mortgage Worked From the LaGrange Graphic.

Last week a most interesting case was tried before Judge L. Pitts. In it was developed a point in law not generally known.

J. G. Trullitt & Co. foreclosed a mortgage on Richmond Morgan, an old colored man, and levied on the cows described therein.

Morgan's wife claimed the cows. Under the law the court was compelled to award them to her, notwithstanding the mortgage was given with her consent. Tans in Georgia, a wife cannot, by standing her husband's security, subject her separate estate to the payment of his debts. The result in this case was the immediate arrest of Morgan for giving a mortgage on property not his own, which under our laws is a misdemeanor and subjects the offender to the chain gang.

We had the pleasure of conversing with Eng Banker, the youngest son of Eng, one of the Simmes Twins, in town last week. The Simmes Twins were one of the greatest monstrosities of the nineteenth century, and were extensively known throughout the world. Eng and Chang were three names. They married sisters, who were daughters of a Mr. Yates of North Carolina. Eng was the father of seven boys and three girls, making a total of 23 children. They died about fourteen years ago, there being only three hours difference in their death.—N. G. Times.

Buried in a Sewer.

Yonkers, N. Y., April 25.—A number of men were working this afternoon in a sewer trench, sixteen feet deep, when a water pipe burst causing the side of the trench to cave in, burying the men. Four bodies have been taken out of the trench, and others are supposed to be still there.

A HARD HAIL IN ABBEVILLE S. C. April 25—

One of the "master" hail showers fell last Wednesday evening in the neighborhood of Walnut Grove church. Some of the people there said that where it drifted up in low places it was two feet deep on the ground, and the next morning it could be shovelled up by the bushel. The little corn and cotton were pelted out of sight under the ground, but in time will be planted over.

GEORGIA'S UNION REGIMENT.

It will be remembered that Representative Candler of this district, presented a petition from the surviving members of what was known during the war as the Georgia Union Regiment, asking pay for services rendered to the Federal Government, and Candler introduced a bill to that effect. This regiment was made up in Dawson and other counties of the Ninth district, and consequently as constituents of Col. Candler, the survivors and the families of those who are dead naturally looked to him to secure for them, if possible, the pay to which they consider themselves entitled. It seems that he has done all that could have been reasonably expected of him, and the following extract, taken from a Washington letter to the Atlanta Journal, will show how the matter stands at the present time. This correspondent

"The secretary of war has communicated to Mr. Candler all the information on file in his department in relation to the organization and military service of the first regiment of Georgia volunteers U. S. A. It appears that this command was organized up on the authority of Major General Thomas, commanding the 2nd Army of the Confederacy, and the order of General Thomas was afterwards dissolved by the war office at Washington on the ground that no troops would be enlisted in the United States service with the stipulation that their services be confined to the limits of any state. The correspondence between General Thomas, Sherman and the war office in reference to this Georgia command is quite interesting reading, but the desire of the army commanders to organize these home guards was finally overruled, and notwithstanding this first regiment had been uniformed and armed and had been engaged in a number of combats, they were never reorganized as a regular military corps and consequently received no pay. The present secretary of war has notified Mr. Candler that he can not recommend the payment of these soldiers now, and it is probable that his bill for their relief will fail."

The following circular explains itself. We give it for the information of our readers:

LYNCHBURG, VA., April 28.—Reports from all sections of the Piedmont Valley agree that the fruit has been ruined by the late cold spell.

A Missing Child.

From the Mason Telegraph.
About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon little Kitty Levy left the residence of her uncle, Mr. Oscar Lagerquist, who lives on Cotton Avenue, and up to a late hour had not been heard from. Mr. Lagerquist made a search of the city, left information at the police barracks, and made inquiry of all Kitty's school friends, but none of them had seen her. She did not care to go to the memorial exercises, and thus her uncle and his friends are greatly distressed at her disappearance. It is hoped that she will turn up all right this morning.

Spring place can boast of the largest little girl in North Georgia. Grace Henry is only eleven years of age and weighs 130 pounds. Grace is not only large but is pretty and a general favorite among the little girls.—Times.

We learn that the track reached Major Beals yesterday, and on Monday the regular train will run into Murphy as the terminus of the line. How does this sound for the M. & N. G. R.?

PRESBYTERIAN CENTENNIAL

Atlanta Journal, 24th ult.

Beginning on the evening of Tuesday, the 12th of June, the Presbyterians of Georgia will hold a series of meetings at the Central Presbyterian Church in this city.

At meetings held in the first Presbyterian church of this city on the 4th of April and on yesterday, the following resolutions were adopted and are now given to the public.

That a mass meeting of Presbyterians throughout the State of Georgia be held at the Central Presbyterian church of Atlanta, Ga., on Tuesday, June 12, 1888, at 8 o'clock p. m., and to continue in session for three days, for the purpose of celebrating the centennial of Presbyterianism and for the consideration of the ways and means for establishing a Presbyterian university of the state of Georgia.

Order of exercises—Address of welcome by Rev. E. H. Barnett, D. D.

1. Opening address by Rev. G. B. Strickler, D. D. Atlanta.—Subject: Presbyterian Doctrine.

2. Presbyterianism and Education in Georgia—Col. Charles C. Jones, of Augusta.

3. Presbyterianism and Republican government—Judge J. T. Nisbit and Hon. Clifford Anderson.

4. Presbyterian Policy—Rev. Geo. T. Goethals, Rome.

5. Adaptation of Presbyterianism to the Masses—Rev. Wm. Adams, D. D., Augusta and Judge Howard Van Epps, Atlanta.

6. Denominational Colleges Rev. John J. Robinson, D. D., Roswell.

The following named gentlemen are suggested as participants in the discussions, and many others can doubtless be induced to attend and take part: Gov. John B. Gordon, Major Campbell Wallace, Col. P. L. Myant, Atlanta; Gen. D. H. Hill, Milledgeville; Hon. Joel A. Dilups, Madison; Hon. Milton A. Candler, Decatur; Ga. Major Beaman, Sparta, Ga.; Colonel Moore, Dalton, Ga.; John Peabody, Columbus, Ga.; John Temple Graves, Rome, Ga.; Judge J. Gresham Dr. J. P. Stevens, Macon, and Judge J. B. Estes, Gainesville.

It is hoped that all of the above named gentlemen will accept the positions, and discharge the duties named.

The following committees were appointed and are requested to act: On invitation Major Campbell Wallace, S. Barry, J. B. Daniel, W. A. Moore and C. W. Hubner.

Transportation—R. A. Anderson, H. T. Iman and R. L. Barry.

Entertainment—T. L. Langston, W. F. Parkhurst, W. E. McAllister, Ed. Kingsberry, G. W. Scott and G. B. McGaughey.

All Presbyterian ministers in the State of Georgia, and one person to represent each congregation, are cordially invited to be present.

All papers in the state friendly to the movement will confer a favor by giving publicity to this matter.

Several persons moved from Bradley county, Tenn., to Washington Territory a year or two ago. Miss White asked to pick her out a sweetheart there. Soon they wrote back that a nice young man was anxious to correspond with her. Numerous letters passed; photographs were exchanged; he sent her $100 to pay her way to Washington Territory; and two weeks ago she started to marry a man whom she had never seen.

—Dr. J. A. Wills and his lady left for their home on Wednesday morning last.

BARNES EVANS & CO.—Will receive a new stock of white, dress goods this week, and will offer them at special low prices. Also, a splendid line of Ladies, Misses and childrens, slippers. We have new arrivals of dry goods, every week. Our stock is large and we promise to save you money if you will come to see us before you buy.

SUPREME COURT.—Mr. W. A. Charles is in attendance upon the Supreme Court in Atlanta, this week.

—C. J. Boyd and R. H. Baker have gone to Atlanta to attend the Supreme Court.

Mr. J. B. Brown is on his rounds taking the school census. Ages from six to eighteen.

A fine lot of country cured HAMS, raised by James Gurley, Sr., at H. D. Gurley's.

May 4th '88.

John A. Wooten, our clever blacksmith fell in the Yahoola ditch a few days ago and lost his butter. Look out down at the Barlow, for it.

Our neighbor Mr. J. P. Parker and his son Frank have both been sick this week. We see Mr. J. P. on the streets again, but Frank hasn't made his appearance yet.

Mr. James Gurley of Giddistown, one of the most prosperous farmers of that neighborhood, was the guest of his son Mr. H. D. Gurley on last Monday night.

Mr. Mauldin, who was shot by Pink Cochran in Giddistown last week is no better and there is but a faint hope of his recovery.

Pic Nic.—Miss Salie Wheelchel, pic niced with her little school children at the Corn Springs on last Saturday. We learn the children enjoyed themselves finely and the occasion passed off pleasantly to all who participated.

Mr. J. W. Strange, one of Banks county's most enterprising farmers is at the Reed house, on a visit to see his son who is a student in the N. G. A. College. He returned to his home on Tuesday morning last.

NOTICE.

The board of education of Lumpkin county, Ga., will meet on the 21st 30th 31st of May, 1888, to examine Public School Teachers. The board will meet at the court house, Dahlonega, Ga.

GONE TO MONTE.—Dr. Long landed in Murphy all O. K. He will not practice his profession now but will work at the carpenter's business. What we have lost we hope Murphy has gained in this change of citizenship.

At the Immigration Convention held at Hot Springs, N. C., day before yesterday, Col. W. P. Price was made chairman of the Georgia delegation, and Mr. S. Cohen, of Augusta, was selected as secretary and Gov. Gordon, Bishop Becker, Hon. Patrick Walsh and Captain E. P. Howell were selected as members of the committee for Georgia.

Col. Price has returned home and promises us an article for publication next week.

MINERAL POST.—This is the name of a sprightly little weekly published at Acworth, Ga., by Charles Williams. The 3d number is upon our table. It is neatly printed well edited and filled with local advertisements.

It certainly sets out under very favorable auspices. We wish the young man great success in his undertaking.

Another Raid.—Collector McAfee and Marshal Harrison surprised the Cheatote boys on last Saturday night and stopped the progress of re-establishing the still and liquor business which was destroyed a few weeks ago, at the same place. The old tubs had been removed and the stills had been gathered up and preparations had been made to resume the business but before the boys had made a run they were again thwarted in their enterprise. No arrests.

Mathias Caldwell was run upon and was arrested on a warrant for violating the internal revenue laws.

Two Boys Drowned.

From the Macon Telegraph.

COLUMBUS, April 20.—Charlie Smith and Henry Martin, two white boys about twelve years of age, were drowned while bathing in the Chattahoochee river this afternoon. The coroner held an inquest returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 28.—Abe Jones, colored, was hanged at Tallahassee to-day for the murder of George Gathbert colored, in November, 1887. This is the first hanging in Tallahassee in twenty years. The execution was private.

The people of the adjoining portions of Fannin, Union and Lumpkin counties want to be organized into a new county, with Giddistown as the county site, and to be named after Senator Brown.—Augusta News.

Rich FIND.—Daniel Keith, colored, has discovered another very rich gold bearing vein on the noted President lot. He visited the locality last Friday and Daniel planned for us from the binding around the vein, and the precious metal showed up handsomely. We believe, judging from the indications exhibited, to us that this one is equal to the Wallace vein worked so successfully last year which yielded several thousands dwts. of the precious metal. We hope Daniel and Bob. Howell and Col. Moore who have interests may be rewarded fully up to their most sanguine expectations.

A Young Lady of Gainesville Goes Back On Her Lover at the Last Moment.

From the Macon Telegraph.

GAINESVILLE, April 25.—A young man from Chattanooga came here last night to be married this morning to a young lady of this place.

When the groom arrived at the bride's home this morning, she was all dressed for the occasion, and a minister and friends were in attendance.

Just before the young lady finished putting on her gloves she told the young man that she did not love him, and could not marry him. He took the next train for home.

How the Democracy of Georgia Slands. From the Griffin News.

This unbroken series of county meetings, all speaking one voice and one resolution, ought certainly to be regarded as establishing our oft repeated assertion and opinion among the Democrats of Georgia in their support of the policy of President Cleveland and the Democrats of the State are substantially a unit on the great issue of the day, completed it will be found that there is little, if any, more division than has already been manifested.

LONDON, April 29.—Ship Smyrna was sunk in collision with the steamer Motto off the Isle of Wight to-day. Thirteen persons drowned.

PARIS, April 29.—In a duel in the Bois du Boulogne to-day between Depurs and Robert, art critics, the former was killed.

Deafness Can't be Cured.

By local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional Remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. In cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of mucus surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

CORNER'S GUARANTEED

CHICKEN

Cholera Curc

After using this medicine for the past ten years, and never finding a case of Cholera that it would not cure, I feel no hesitancy in offering it for sale with a guarantee that it will cure every cholera that has the Cholera with it, enough to eat a particle of this medicine. Your dealer will RETURN THE MONEY, IF IT FAILS TO CURE. Please read the following TESTIMONIALS.

Judge Howell, Conn., who is authority on all points pertaining to the poultry yard, publishes the following letter in the Southern Farmer: "CORNER'S GUARANTEED CHICKEN CHOLERA CURE—This Summer I have had the first touch of cholera in my yard for several years. I lost my best cock and several hens. My neighbor, Mr. James T. Comer, of Athens, Ga., heard of my trouble and sent me, to try, a package of his Cholera Cure. When I used this medicine I had two hens in collapse condition, too far gone to eat and about to die. Several others were affected. I fed the remedy in food, as directed, to the flock. I gave the two hens named the medicine in solution. One of these died, the other is now well. In twenty-four hours she was relieved, and in one week entirely well. The other affected fowls all recovered health and vigor in a few days. No other case developed. All my flock are now well. It is a month now since the disease disappeared. I believe the remedy of my friend Comer saved me from a destructive mishap of the worst destroyer of fowls.

HOWELL COB.

HARMONY GROVE, Ga., August 22, 1887.—This is to certify that I have given Corner's Guaranteed Chicken Cholera Cure a trial, and can safely recommend it as a certain cure for this fatal disease among fowls.

W. J. GOSS.

ATHENS, GA., Mar. 7, 1888.—Mr. J. T. Comer—Dear Sir: When I got the package of Cholera Cure from you my fowls were affected with cholera, and I supposed was the cholera in the first stages. We gave them only a few doses, and since that time they seem perfectly healthy, and are now in splendid condition. Yours truly,

W. C. ORR.

HARMONY GROVE, Ga., March 8, 1888.—J. T. Comer, Athens, Ga., can recommend your C. G. C. C. C. to any one. It is all you claim for it. Respectfully,

A NERVOUS EDITOR.

Determine that His Existence Shall Not Be Ignored.

From the Arizona Kicker.

There is no use of attempting to disguise the fact that certain rings and factories in this gulch have for the last three months made desperate efforts to ignore the existence of the Kicker. Having failed to frighten or bribe us, ostracism was their little game. They determined to freeze us out. We first became aware of this movement three months ago, when Mrs. Judge Gildersleeve gave her blowout. At that time we received the following card:

All gentlemen attending this reception will be expected to wear a white shirt.

The inference was as plain as the pimples on Mrs. Gildersleeve's nose. They thought we hadn't a white shirt. They thought we'd attend with an army blanket thrown carelessly over our shoulders. The object was to let us know that Mrs. Gildersleeve didn't look upon us as knowing what belonged to manners. It was all right. We didn't go. As to whether the Gildersleeve ring came out ahead opinions differ. Our account of the party, headed "Fathering of the Vultures," is still going the rounds of the press. In that article we proved Judge Gildersleeve to be an embezzler and a horse thief, and we adduced positive proof that Mrs. Judge was a broken-down and played-out fortune-teller, who had been compelled to skip from St. Louis. The Judge called at the Kicker office next day with a shot-gun, but when we brought out more letters—proofs that he had served time in the prisons and that Mrs. Judge still hid the workhouse cut on her hair when she arrived in Arizona—the Judge did not shoot.

The Jackson Hiller in next and tied to make us sing small. They got mad because we weren't juggling gem in every issue. Colonel Decker had two shillings worth of repairs on his automobile, and the Kicker didn't notice it. Mrs. Profess, son Prothigham turned an old silk dress top to bottom and the Kicker didn't come out with a notice that she had received a five hundred dollar dress from Worth. Major Hornblower put a porcelain door knob on the front door of his abode, and the Kicker didn't come out with a list of the enterprisers bound to bring in new settlers and boom real estate. It was before determined to down us. Lillie De Lisle the red-headed daughter of the one-legged county clerk made her debut, and we were not invited to the blowout. It was an action intended to break our heart, and we promptly countered. It was on our trip that the Sheriff went up about ten o'clock that evening and gathered in two bigamists from New England, an embezzler from Ohio and a fugitive from Chicago, all of whom were looked upon as the cream of society and were airing their frills and scallops at the great debut.

We are here to stay. We put on our shanty with our own hands. We board and lodge ourselves, and we have not only got the cost of living down fine, but are getting our white paper so cheap that we can make money with a list of thirty subscribers and three pages of dead "ads." We are going to run the Kicker after our own style, whether it suits the big bugs of Jackson Hill or the hall-stained cayotes of Poverty Hollow. While we don't hanker after invitation to exclusive parties and church socials, we don't propose to take a snub from any set. While we are willing to boom the town, we don't propose to sit up nights to let the outside world know that some citizen has added a bath tub to his

The Wages of sin.
From the Macon Telegraph.

NOFOLK, VA., April 28.—This evening Taylor, a young man of this city, shot Thomas R. Tanner, a clerk in the Singer Sewing Machine office here. Taylor's young sister, Ellen, was betrayed several months ago, and when upbraided by her mother, she confessed that Tanner was the man who ruined her.

Her brother, who was lying ill in an adjoining room, overheard the conversation and determined that he would kill Tanner, who is a married man, when he recovered. He met Tanner this evening and shot him twice, the last time after he had fallen and begged for mercy, wounding him fatally. The girl was driven insane by her shame and is now in an asylum. Taylor is in jail.

A THRILLING OCCURRENCE.

The Miraculous Escape of Ladies and Children From a Horrible Death.

Passengers on the train from Columbus yesterday report the following: On Monday evening as train No. 1, which left Macon at 10:10 a. m., was passing over the Mobile and Girard portion of the route to Troy, on the trestle that spans the Hatcheechubbee creek near Hatcheechubbee, to his great surprise Engineer Ledbetter discovered two ladies, Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Woolfolk, with two are three children and a nurse about midway of the trestle. The former with two children and the nurse succeeded after making a desperate effort to reach terra firma Mrs. Woolfolk, it seemed, became crazed by fear and catching hold of a child threw it off the trestle beneath and plunged headlong after it. The down grade was so great when the train was running all the efforts to stop it proved useless and he applied the air but brake, it did not stop the train until it had passed the point of the trestle where the ladies had stood.

After the train had been brought to a stop, Conductor E. T. Davis went back with his crew to where the unfortunate lady was lying prostrate and unconscious. The conductor kindly placed her on the train and took her to Hatcheechubbee, her home. She was badly bruised, but not seriously hurt, though she had an ugly gash in the face, caused by striking some timber beneath the trestle. The child was not hurt in the least.

The escape of all the party seemed almost miraculous, and may be put down as one of the most thrilling occurrences that ever came under the observation of Conductor Davis and Engineer Ledbetter.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT DALLHOE, GA.
DALLHOE, GA., May 11, 1888.
Lumpkin County Sunday School Convention.

The Lumpkin County Sunday School Association, held their annual session at Jones, Chapel, on Saturday last, although the early morn was gloomy and threatening rain. Nevertheless, from all parts of the county the people came and by nine o'clock a large crowd had gathered. Later in the day, the clouds dispersed and the sun shone brightly.

At half past nine, the President, Dr. B. F. Chapman, called the association to order and read a scripture lesson. Rev. C. V. Weathers led in Prayer. The regular order of business was taken up. Reports were received from the following Schools: Dahlonega Methodist, Dahlonega Baptist, Rock Springs, Keystone, Jones Chapel, Porter Springs, Soules Chapel, Hightower Hampton, Siloam, and Philippi, which showed progress. Many schools in the county were not reported.

The following were elected as officers of the association for the ensuing year: Dr. B. F. Chapman, President, Bros. W. T. Davis, A. L. Wimpy, J. B. Duckett, G. W. Scroggins, Jno. Dickerson, Jos. H. Bell, Vice-Presidents, Rev. C. V. Weathers Secretary, W. H. Satterfield, Marshal, Rev. A. C. Ward, Chorister, A. G. Wimpy, and Rev. A. C. Ward, and Goodman Hughes Executive Committee.

The association being entitled to two delegates to the State convention which will be held at Gainesville June 13, 14, Dr. B. F. Chapman, and M. N. Stowe, were elected.

A collection was taken and in a few minutes a sufficient sum was procured to buy lumber for making the dinner table for the association from year to year. Jones Chapel was selected as the place, and Saturday before the 1st Sunday in May, '89, for holding the next association. Here the association adjourned to meet again at 1:30 P. M. During the intermission allotted the people were all marched by Marshal Satterfield down in the grove to where the Jones' Chapel Brethren had nicely arranged the table which we found laden with much nice, nutritious and wholesome food, spread out by the good people of Lumpkin County. All heartily helped themselves, after blessing by Rev. A. C. Ward.

Half past one arrived, and the association repaired to the front yard of the church where the large audience was entertained by the interesting speeches of U. C. Bowman O. P. Brazelton, T. H. Gilbert, and Willis McDonald, young men representing Dahlonega Methodist, Dahlonega Baptist, Jones, Chapel, and Hightower Schools, respectively.

The declamations by Luther Hightower, Rosa Marony, Agatha Martin, Mattie Ferguson, Fannie Wimpy and Lizzie McDonald were well and well rendered.

This closed the programme. The association adjourned with benediction by Rev. G. Hughes and all went home inspired and encouraged.

Mrs. Emma Fry, one of the handsomest married women in Nashville Tenn., has eloped with Shreveburg, an ugly convict. They first tried to continue in Nashville but being found out, they fled to New Orleans.

In Carrollton, Ohio last week, Charles Butler insulted Miss Jennie Fisher by whistling an offensive air and calling her "dick". She drew a cowhide from her sleeve and whipped him severely.

At a ball near Waco, Texas, Horace Miles and Peter Crouse fought to decide who should dance with Miss Emma Muse; Miles, being worsted, shot Crouse through the body.

The announcement is going the rounds that a Georgia regiment which enlisted in the Union army during the late unpleasantness (as it is pleasantly termed) are now asking for pensions. We never heard of that regiment before. Where was it made up, and who were its officers? All honor to the Union soldiers from the Union States, but the brand of Cain and the stigma of Ishmael upon every Georgian who deserted Georgia in the hour of her peril. Who are those Georgia Union soldiers who ask Congress to pay them the price of betrayal?—Atlanta Capital, May 4.

These so called Union soldiers are made up of men who deserted the Confederate army about the time that Governor Brown opposed the Conscription act on account of its inconstititutionality, and in order to avoid service in defence of their country they sought refuge across the lines, and formed themselves into a command, and entitled themselves the first Georgia Union regiment. They deserted their bleeding country and to prove their loyalty to the union they had to enlist in the Union army, so called, but nothing more than a gang of robbers and bushwhackers, to prove their faith by their works. Several of them came back to their homes and whenever one of them were caught he was either hanged or shot.

We know of three men who belonged to a confederate command, that went from this county, that deserted and went home, and when they came home on a visit, or to get information for the enemy, they were arrested and were shot. These men are no more entitled to the benefits of the pension acts than any other gang of deserters, who sought, by their acts, to overthrow their own country which was bleeding from poor to poor, to keep from doing their duty as citizens of the seceded States.

They are not recognised by the true Union soldier—they are not recognised by the true confederate soldier, and they are not recognised by the Secretary of war, and hence, the name Hog-back which they accorded to themselves by their acts towards their native country in time of its peril, will follow after them for many generations to come.

There is no act of Representative Candler that we venture, only this one, in trying to obtain a pension for this dishonored crew.

Press Correspondence.—The Senior of the Signal corps, accompanied by his daughter Miss Sallie Reel, took their departure, on Tuesday morning, for Canton, to attend the meeting of the Georgia Press Convention, which convenes there the 10th inst. As great preparations have been made in Canton for the reception and the universal hospitalities extended all along the Marietta and N. Ga. R. R. to Murphy, on their free excursion, we anticipate for them most enjoyable trip.

The U. S. Court decided that a railroad is liable to an employee for injuries sustained through the negligence of another employee in doing or not doing, what the railroad employed him to do.

Death of Mrs. H. P. Bell.

Cumming, April 30.—A gloom of sadness has fallen over our community because of the death of Mrs. H. P. Bell, wife of Ex-Congressman Bell, which occurred this morning at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Bell for several months has been a sufferer from that dread disease cancer, of which, despite the very best medical skill and attention, she died.

Her husband and several grown children, besides hundreds of other relatives and friends, are plunged in deepest grief at her demise.

She was a lady of talented mind and lovable disposition, and her influence for good will be greatly missed.

Her remains will be interred in the Catholic cemetery to morrow.

A Montana miner, owing $48, proposed to let his creditor shoot at him twice, 200 feet away, for the debt. The editor agreed, and put two bullets in the debtor's anatomy.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

No expense bears so heavily upon our people now as that of buying school books. The modern method of teaching may be better than the style of twenty-five years ago, but is certainly ten times as expensive in the matter of buying books. The burden is enormous and we don't see any relief as long as the law stands as they are. It is now so arranged that the books can not be bought at prices reduced to a proper figure by competition in the trade. Certain books are selected by the State Board of Education and the people are required to have these. An astonishing profit is made on all such books.

It strikes us too, that the number of books required is too great. This plan of having five or six different kinds of readers to teach a child to read seems absurd and unnecessary. One book is enough for the purpose. The study of geography, grammar and arithmetic is conducted in the same voluminous manner. History is also taught out of a number of volumes. If the present plan is not one to make book trade a bonanza we don't see how a better one could be devised.

We have been looking for some great educator who has some sympathy for a poor man to suggest and elaborate a remedy for this evil, but no such reform has yet appeared. When he does come upon the stage of action he will be hailed as a public benefactor and he will deserve the distinction. The poor farmer who has a house full of poor children to educate stands no chance to accumulate anything for a rainy day. The cost of elementary books alone will make a big hole in his cotton crop.

There is pressing necessity for some relief from this crying evil.—Abbeville Medium.

Governor Taylor, of Tennessee, recently told of a colored clergyman who preached a sermon on the text, "And the multitude came to him and he healed them of divers diseases." Said he: "My dying congregation, this is a terrible text. Disease is in the world. The small-pox slays its hundreds, the cholera its thousands, and the yellow fever its tens of thousands, but in the language of the text, if you take the divers you are gone. These earthly doctors can cure the small-pox, cholera, and yellow fever if they get there in time, but nobody but the good Lord can cure the divers."

Sciences.—In Licking, Missouri, James Smalley, after killing two of his children (his wife and one of his children) jumped from the window; in Cooper, Texas, B. F. Boydston, after killing Miss Leila Fraiser because she postponed their marriage; Colonel Thomas Bains, of Crawford county, Ga., in Newark, N. J., William Ballock, after killing his wife, from jealousy; in Nelsonville, Ohio, Samuel Dow after killing E. H. Davis, marshal who had arrested Dow not long before, in Philadelphia—Behldorf, aged 60, and his wife aged 55, no cause known.

In Calhoun county, West Virginia, Jacob Hollis returning home late at night, saw a light in the house. Looking through a window, he saw his wife and three children dead on the floor and three strange men in the room. He killed three, and wounded the fourth severely.

Mayor Lewis, of Olean, N. Y., has eloped with Miss Catherine Hodge, young and pretty, but not bright. He left a good home, a fine business, an agreeable wife and two nice children. It is thought that he could not have taken more than $200 with him. No one seems to know why he thus threw himself away.

Mormons, both preachers and people, have for some time been professing that they had given up polygamy. Some of their preachers however, assert that it is still a doctrine of their church. Which are sincere, time only can decide.

My love is lovely as a peach
With beauty ripe and rare.
What thought she be beyond my reach?
To praise her I may dare.
Her dusky skin, her blushes sweet,
Her dimpled, girlish face,
Her ruffled hair, her bay hair feet,
Her charming, modest grace.
Her merry laugh, her shaming wit
Would make a cynic rave.
O, I should never tire of it
If I could be her slave.
But she is far beyond my reach,
And I must live alone;
My love is very like a peach—
She has a heart of stone.

In Hancock county, Tenn., some months ago, Dick Green, being assaulted by William Jones while going to church with his babe in his arms, drew his pistol, shot him dead, and went on to church. He was put in jail, but last week was released on bond. Last Sunday William Jones's two brothers and their father attacked Green. Other Greens came in; two Greens and one Jones were wounded dangerously.

DAHLONEGA SIGNAL.

DAHLONEGA, GA., May 11, '88.

Unfold the hands and wake the eyes.
Don't be content to rest;
But join the men who adventure,
And let that be your trust.

The Davis new bridge across the Hightower will be completed in a few days, we learn from the Ordinary. This will be good news to all citizens beyond the river in that section.

Mad Dog.—Ferd. McDonald came near being bit by a mad dog a few days ago. The dog was crazy and was running on a bee line regardless of incumbrances. The dog bit a hog in the Davis settlement and at least accounts the boys were pursuing him.

Serious Fall.—Mrs. Margaret Huff, on her return from the picnic on Last Saturday fell out of a wagon in front of Mr. G. Hughes together with her two little step daughters. They all fell in one heap with spring seat on top. Fortunately none of them were seriously injured. The horses jumped suddenly which caused the seat to let loose from its holdings and all went out backwards falling about eight feet.

Felicitous Unexpressed.—Not many miles from this place there lives a well to do farmer who is now living with wife number three; in the house there is an old rocking chair which wife number one and wife no. two rocked the babies to sleep many a lovely night. Not long ago wife number three made a demand upon the old man, who was able and willing, to buy her a new chair. The request was granted and now wife number three occupies her new chair and sings

"Amazing grace how sweet the sound,"
While the old man occupies the old chair and sings
"Show pity Lord."

NOTICE.

The board of education of Lumpkin county, Ga., will meet on the 29th 30th 31st of May, 1888, to examine Public School Teachers. The board will meet at the court House, Dahlonega, Ga.

J. B. BROWN, C. S. C.

BARNES EVANS & Co., will receive a new stock of white dress goods this week, and will offer them at special low prices. Also a splendid line of Ladies' Misses and childrens' shippers. We have new arrivals of dry goods, every week. Our stock is large and we promise to save you money if you will come to see us before you buy.
Gainesville, Ga., May 4th, '88.

THE CEMETERY.—This sacred spot, dear to us all, for there rests our loved ones, is still receiving the attention of our city fathers. Many important changes have been made and all the graves are receiving attention. A nice drive has been made around the inside of the inclosure and steps have been made to go over the fence for pedestrians instead of having to hunt up the key and open the main gate.

There is work yet to be done and many other improvements can be made. Those who have dear ones sleeping in this lonely bivouac of the dead should do something in the way of a contribution.

Senator Courtney and his mother, Mr. Moody visited the grave of Dr. Moody, and other relatives a few days ago and noticing the valuable improvements made, they at once authorized Mayor Hall to draw on them for fifteen dollars to be expended in future improvements. To those who desire to help in this laudable work can send their contributions to Mayor Hall and we promise for him that all amounts so contributed will be properly and economically spent for this very noble and charitable purpose. Send along something, you will feel better over the charitable offering, and it will add much, no matter how little the contribution, to keep fresh in memory the place where rests our dead.

Mauldin who was shot by Cochran, some time ago, in Gaddis town is getting well. He walked to the door of his dwelling a few days ago.

RAIN.—We have had several refreshing rains this week, and all vegetation is delighted and is putting on its best clothes.

TAX NOTICE.

City Tax, for the present year, is now due. W. B. TOWNSEND, May 10th, 1888. Marshal.

The citizens of Dahlonega are requested to be present at the Phi Mu public debate this eve at 7:30, o'clock.

Married.—Wm. Dobson and Mrs. Eliza Howell were married on last Tuesday night. We hope they may live happily together, and prosper.

BLACK LEAD.—Mr. Martin Burns has left in our office a genuine piece of black lead, found near his residence on Amicolola. There is no end to the vast and various minerals throughout this whole section of Georgia.

THE FINDLEY SUITE.—Mr. E. E. Crisson has again attacked this rich lode with a partner, we understand, fully able to meet his portion of the expenses. If the boys can hold out at this expensive work until they come to the next pocket it will pay them handsomely for their outlay for all past and future expenses.

Bob. Howell has bought out Daniel Keith's interest in the new discovery on the preacher lot and Bob. and Col. Moore are the lessees.

STRAWBERRIES.—Mrs. B. R. Meaders tells us about her large ripe strawberries. Mr. H. D. Gurley has been enjoying this delicious fruit for more than a week, and has the finest patch in his yard we have ever seen. Truly this is one of the "finest countries on God's green earth," as Col. Baker would say, and our soil produces every thing in the vegetable Kingdom, and that of the very finest. From now until the Chestnut crop is gone, we enjoy all the fruits in the vocabulary of wild vegetation. We are safe now and no danger of starving.

Jack Strickland and Mary Cady, colored, were happy united in marriage a few nights ago at the colored Baptist Church.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Mr. Editor:
Please allow me space in the columns of your paper to make the following statements:

In 1886, the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South which convened in Richmond, Va., set apart the 3rd Sunday in May as children's day, to be observed by the entire Southern Church.

We are excepted, as Methodists, to give especial prominence to children's work on that day. Hence, we will, here at Dahlonega, contribute the entire morning hour of the 3rd Sunday in May to this service.

There are two features which are potent in connection with it. One is, a recognition of the children as a factor in the Sunday school and to be factors in church. The other is a development of benevolence and liberality.

The programme gotten up by our church, which is indeed an interesting one, and which will be published next week, provides for a collection to be taken among the children. The money raised will be used in the support of destitute Sunday Schools at home and abroad. Let each parent if practicable see that their children be supplied with something from a penny up, on that day, so that all may render a thank offering to the Lord. Let all who are connected with our School in any way, as well as those who are interested in the children, lend their help by their prayers, presence and co-operation.

My brethren and friends, the children are the hope of our country, therefore, let us strike to encourage them as well as to make an impress for good upon them.

We will dispense with Sunday School on that day. The services will commence at 10.30. The Baptist School is cordially invited to be present. Your truly,

C. V. Weathers,
Dahlonega, Ga.,
May 8, 1888.

AREAS.—Mrs. Fannie Baker presented, her mother, Mrs. B. R. Meaders, the fourth inst., with a fine mess of Irish potatoes and English peas. That beats us by at least one month.

COMER'S GUARANTEED

CHICKEN

Cholera Cure!

After using this medicine for the past ten years, and never finding a case of Cholera Cholera that it would not cure, I feel no hesitancy in offering it for sale with a guarantee that it will cure every chicken that has the Cholera with life enough to eat a particle of the medicine. Your dealer will REFUND THE MONEY, IF IT FAILS TO CURE. Please read the following TESTIMONIALS.

Judge HOWELL COSM, who is authority on all points pertaining to the poultry yard, publishes the following letter in the Southern Farmer: "Comer's Guaranteed CHICKEN CHOLERA CURE—This Summer I have had the first touch of cholera in my yard for several years. I lost my best cock and several hens. My neighbor, Mr. James T. Comer, of Athens, Ga., heard of my trouble and sent me, to try, a package of his Cholera Cure. When I used this medicine I had two hens in collapse condition, too far gone to eat and about to die. Several others were affected. I fed the remedy in food, as directed, to the flock. I gave the two hens named the medicine in solution. One of these died, the other is now well. In twenty-four hours she was relieved, and in one week entirely well. The other affected fowls all recovered health and vigor in a few days. No other case developed. All my flocks are now well. It is a month now since the disease disappeared. I believe the remedy of my friend Comer saved me from a destructive mishap of the worst destroyer of fowls."

HOWELL COSM.

HARMONY GROVE, Ga., August 2, 1887.—This is to certify that I have given Comer's Guaranteed Chicken Cholera Cure a trial, and can safely recommend it as a certain cure for this fatal disease among fowls.

W. J. GOSS.

ATHENS, Ga., Mar. 7, 1888.—Mr. J. T. Comer—Dear Sir: When I got the package of Cholera Cure from you my fowls were affected with something that I supposed was the cholera in its first stages. We gave them only a few doses, and since that time they seem perfectly healthy, and are now in splendid condition. Yours truly,

W. C. ORR.

HARMONY GROVE, Ga., March 8 1888.—J. T. Comer, Athens, Ga., can recommend your C. G. C. O. C. to any one. It is all you claim for it. Respectfully, R. L. HARMAN.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT DALLONGA, GA.

DALLONGA, GA., - MAY 25, 1888.

A Complete List of The Press Association Party.

The following Telegram from Macon to the Brunswick morning News, of May the 17th, says: Two Pullman sleepers passed through here to night occupied by the State Press Association and their guests en-route for Brunswick and St. Simon's Island. The company was made up as follows:

V. E. Orr, George Teacher, S. W. Hawkins, and wife, Covington Star.

J. W. and O. Ison, Covington Star.

W. E. Harpe, Jackson news.

C. S. Atwood, wife and daughter, Atlanta Capitol.

Walter S. Coleman, Ellijay Courier.

C. R. Tate, Tate, Ga., representing the Athens University Reporter.

J. W. Chapman, wife and niece, Washington Gazette.

C. H. Wells and wife, Dixie, Atlanta Constitution.

R. P. Spalding and wife, Atlanta Journal.

C. J. Brumley, Southern Farmer, Athens.

Col. H. W. Newman, Canton, representing Hon. Patrick Walsh, Augusta Chronicle.

James V. Terth, Etowah Cyclone.

Frank P. Bartz, Cherokee Advance.

J. P. Reed and daughter, Dahlonega Signal.

J. S. McKown and R. W. Miller, wife and son, Argus, of Jackson.

C. M. Spear, Henry County Times.

J. N. Hale, Henry County Week ly.

G. G. Mean, Crawfordville Democrat.

P. T. McClellan, Franklin News.

W. Wickle, Cartersville Conant & American.

G. S. May, wife and two daughters Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Wrenn.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Harris, Mrs. Pauline Ellis, Master Harry Wrenn, Master John Grant, Wilkins, Miss Jeannette Bain, and Mrs. Osburn, Atlanta.

Miss Nettie Clendendon, Miss Mattie Calloway, Mrs. J. B. Davis, Covington.

Miss Maggie Harris and Miss Willie Davis, Canton.

Miss Annie Ward, Brunswick.

Miss Fannie Glover, Miss Lizzie Glover, Miss Jessie Montgomery, Mrs. McCollough, and Master Wilder Glover, Marietta.

A party of twelve joined the excursionist here. G. H. Y.

The party arrived at Brunswick in due season and received the hospitality of Manager King and he, although crowded for Room, was equal to the emergency, according to the report of those who participate in the reception.

After breakfasting and strolling around for an hour or so it was announced that the Steamer Ezmont was ready at the wharf for a trip to St. Simons Island.

The party was increased above the list given in the telegram, and it was a large and lively one, having been increased from every station along the line from Atlanta to Brunswick.

They visited St. Simon's Beach, and arriving at that point an hour and a half was engaged in, rambling over the beach gathering shells and other curiosities never before seen by many of them to store away as mementoes of their trip to the sea.

The whistle blew and reminded them that time was up and they returned to the Oglethorpe and par took of a hearty meal. At four o'clock they took a ride over the city, and visited and viewed the main points of interest.

At night a dance was given at the Oglethorpe in honor of the guests, and the sweet music of the Atlantic band and the lovers of the light fantastic too was enjoyed by all present.

The editors, generally, expressed themselves in being highly pleased with the growing city by the sea which is growing in importance every day. The Brunswick Morning News says:

The long looked for Press Association has come and gone. The editors have seen Brunswick once more, and have returned to their various posts of duty from whence we shall expect to hear them airing their opinion of us shortly. We trust those opinions will be favorable ones, and if so we shall fully agree with the gentleman from the distance. Brunswick has done what she could to make their brief stay a pleasant one, and it is their testimony that she has succeeded. All expressed themselves as highly entertained during their brief stay in the city, and greatly pleased with the trip entire. This being the case we are satisfied.

Brunswick may rest content in the consciousness that she has not missed anything in a necessary sense by the visit of our brothers of the press. But throwing aside all such sordid considerations our city has been honored by as bright versatile, profound and broad gauged a set of men as can be selected in a like manner from any other as noble calling as there is and we speak from the heart when we say "come again soon."

About the Gold Fields of Georgia.

There has never been a more healthy condition of the mining industries of N. E. Georgia, and particularly of Lumpkin County, than to day. Mining, as a general thing, is conducted on legitimate principles. Several new mills have been recently erected, and the mines in operation are not only producing a very satisfactory regular output, but the outlook for the future is very promising. There is here an activity among our local miners observable, that has never been so marked before, and the recent discoveries of rich veins, show the development of quite a number of valuable mines, and mining properties must be quoted as signs of rapid improvement and is evidence of the steady progress in this important industry. For the last few years the mining industries of Georgia has been suffering, principally, from want of a better knowledge of mining, and of proper, systematic management of the mining business. To-day mining is better understood and carried out in a more legitimate way. The results of which have been most encouraging. But it is surprising to notice the great indifference toward the Georgia sulphuret ores, and I can only find the reason for this in the fact that there is here such an immense amount of low grade ore available and in easy reach, for scores of years to come, that can be worked to good profits, that the interest regarding the sulphurets has entirely been neglected. These sulphurets are as a whole, high grade material, awaiting only the erection of smelters and blast furnaces here to bring the mining business of Georgia in a new era and to yield large and permanent returns to investors. As these sulphurets exist here in large quantities and can be treated economically and by simple process, the time is on hand, when capitalists will seek investments in this branch of mining in Georgia where the chances for a safe and very profitable employment of capital are unquestionably equal, if not superior to most other mining States and territories. I have collected, personally, sulphuret ores from different gold belts, from various veins, and at depths from 10 to 100 feet below surface ground. The tests of which I made by assay and also by smelting and separating process in different northern and western establishments by reliable authorities have confirmed the high value of the sulphurets of N. E. Georgia, and we do not hesitate to draw the attention of capitalists, business and mining men to the mining fields of N. E. Georgia. Any desired information with regard to the facts embraced in the above statements and upon the mining business at large, will be furnished on request, by addressing Orzo C. Smith, mineralogist and mining expert.

Lumpkin County's Brag Gold Mine, Litigation Ended

It will be a matter of general interest for our people to know that the celebrated Barlow case has at last been finally gained by the defendant. This case has probably attracted more attention than any case ever tried here, having been tried twice, each time gaining by Mr. Barlow and each time occupying more than three days in the trial. The supreme court has recently affirmed the judgment of the Superior Court and thus after five years of litigation the title to what is probably the best mine in Lumpkin county is made perfect in the Barlow. We copy from the Atlanta Constitution the decision in the case.

Ware et al. vs. Barlow, Ejectment from Lumpkin. Title. Prescription. Fraud. Notice. Laches. Will. Executions before Judge Wellborn.

Simmons, J. L. The declaration in the code that possession, to be the foundation of prescription, must not originate in fraud, means such fraud as actual, moral fraud as distinguished from legal fraud. Virgin vs. Wingfield 54 Ga. 451, S. C. 51 Ga. 139; Wright vs. Salter October term, 1887. Hunt et al. vs. Dunn et al. 74 Ga. 120, cited, doubted and distinguished.

(4) Where the evidence shows that defendant purchased the land in question from the executors, under his will had the right to sell this land, and contained no intimation that there was another executor or that the property in question was not mentioned in the will; and the evidence further shows, that defendant paid a large sum of money for the land, went into immediate possession of it and held it from that time up to the commencement of this litigation, claiming it in good faith; if the title he thus acquired were not a good legal title, it was a mistake of law on his part of the parties from whom he purchased, no actual fraud being shown on the part of either.

(5) Even if defendant had looked at the will and found that three executors were appointed in it and that this land was not mentioned in it could hardly be held that the was guilty of a fraud if he had concluded that two of the executors had the right to carry out the provisions of the will and to sell this land. The propositions involved in such a decision are not free from doubt, even in the minds of able judges; and it seems from the record that two judges of the superior court have decided in this case, that the two executors had the right to sell this land.

2. The record further shows that the land was sold to defendant in June 1886; that most of the parties plaintiff had notice of the sale at that time and that the action was not begun until seven years after the purchase was made and fifteen years after all had notice.

It seems that it would be a fraud, under the facts, to deprive defendant of the land.

3 While the court below might have left the matter of good faith to the jury as they would have been obliged to find in favor of defendant, the case will not be sent back for another trial.

Judgment affirmed. Wright, Myerhart and Wright, H. H. Hammond and R. H. Baker for plaintiffs in error. Price, Curran and H. H. Perry control.

Again, the Constitution of May 18 contains the following:

A Celebrated Case.

On Wednesday morning last week the supreme court affirmed the decision in the case of Annie Ware et al. vs. Samuel L. M. Barlow, ejectment from Lumpkin superior court. The lot sued for is celebrated far and wide as the "Pigeon Roost Gold Mine," which has been profitably worked for ten years past by Mr. Barlow of New York. Aside from the real value of the lot, the immense profits sued for according to the testimony, reached something over $200,000. The case was tried twice in the superior court and lost by the plaintiffs and came to the supreme court on a refusal to grant a new trial by Judge Wellborn. The plaintiffs are the heirs at law of Edward Ware, deceased, of Floyd county, and were represented by Messrs. Wright, Myerhart & Wright of Rome; Hall & Hammond, of Atlanta, and R. H. Baker, of Dahlonega. The defendant is represented by Messrs. Price & Charters, of Dahlonega, and H. H. Perry, of Gainesville. The argument in the supreme court for defendant in error was made by Mr. W. A. Charters, whose first speech in our supreme court was listened to with much interest by the court and bar and elicited many favorable comments. Mr. Charters is a young Virginian, and his splendid effort in this case, involving as it did many intricate questions of law, reflected credit upon his legal training, which was had at the law school of Washington and Lee university. The decision just rendered settles many questions involved in the doctrines of common propositus and prescription.

In common with our citizens generally, we congratulate Mr. Barlow on the splendid victory he has gained. We can now have some confidence in land titles and gold mines.

National Democratic Convention.

St. Louis, May 14.—Preparations for the national democratic convention are now assuming a tangible shape, and there seems to be no doubt that the convention will be an political success in its social as well as its political features.

The Hall, when the arrangements are completed, will seat 13,000 people. In a few days the decorators will commence work and will adorn the great nave with natural flowers potted plants flags, bunting and pictures, the design being already completed.

Arrangements are now being made for an immense pyrotechnic display on the bridge. A steamboat excursion on the river will be another feature. It will return, in time to see the fire-works on the boat.

Gov. John B. Gordon is to attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, in Baltimore, this week as a delegate.

Ex Gov. Bullock, it is announced has concluded to accept the Republican nomination for governor of Georgia. This is an unwise conclusion, for Governor Gordon who will be renominated by the Democrats, is the idol of the people, and will snow Bullock under by at least 100,000 majority. The ex governor should remember Wormalth's recent overwhelming defeat in Louisiana.—Metropolis.

In "Walks and Talks," of the Brunswick Morning News, we clip the following paragraph, which ought to be read by every young man: "How I would like to see young men when they handle the fair name of women, touch it as they would have others touch that of their sisters and mothers. Oh the misery that is caused in this world by the careless handling of a name; the pure homes that have been almost blighted by the foul mouth of slander, when, there was no real foundation for it on earth. Careless words are so often like miasmatic breezes wafted far and near they poison the whole system. Yes, and it so often unintentionally they fall, and sometimes blight a household. I have in mind now, a home in this city that has been made desolate; a home once bright and happy, now full of misery, made so by a few thoughtless words."

Geo. Doffie, a colored preacher was hanged in Greensboro on Friday last for the murder of Bill Cheney, also colored. Jealousy was the motive of the crime. Both men were in love with Sarah Haine. On the night of the murder Cheney escorted the woman to church, and on their return, McDuffie shot Cheney from ambush on the roadside. The murder was most deliberate and brutal and was fully confessed by McDuffie before he was hanged.

DAHLONEGA SIGNAL.

DAHLONEGA, GA., May 23, '88.

NOTICE

The board of education of Lumpkin county, Ga., will meet on the 29th 30th 31st of May, 1888, to examine Public School Teachers. The board will meet at the court house, Dahlonega, Ga.

J. B. BROWN, C. S. C.

The Convention—Large interests are being taken among students and citizens for the approaching commencement, and it bids fair to be one of the most enjoyable of all its predecessors.

Delegates to the National Democratic Convention.

The committee of three appointed to select the best route for the Georgia delegates to travel over to St. Louis to the meeting of the National Democratic Convention, which convenes June 8th 1888 have selected route via Nashville & Evansville, called the "Daisy Line" of the "L. & N." and have decided to leave Atlanta, in a body on Sunday June 3rd 7. 50 A. M. and to arrive at St. Louis 7. 50 A. M. June 4th. Only one fare for round trip and tickets can be bought for the same by any one, June 1st 2nd 3rd and 4th. For any further particulars address Fred D. Bush, District Passenger Agent, Atlanta, Ga.

We have had a glorious season which came exactly in the right time. Our farmers were over their corn the first time, and our gardens were just exactly in the right condition to receive the blessings. Never has gardens looked finer at this season.

When the State Convention refused to send Col. Walsh to St. Louis, it made a threat at the party it meant to serve, for it displaced a leader, a faithful and unflinching patriot who was a pillar of Democracy, when the men who opposed him were babes in arms—Walton News.

The only way to amend the grievances, by this diabolical act, upon the part of the convention towards Pat Walsh, is to nominate him for Governor when the State convention assembles.

Capt. H. W. Newman was a good representative of Patch Walsh and the Chronicle on the excursion to Brunswick.

RETURNED.—The publisher and associate editor of the SIGNAL, Mr. J. P. Reed, and his daughter Miss Sallie, have arrived home after an absence of about two weeks enjoying the hospitalities of the good citizens from the mountains to the sea board, in attendance upon the Press Convention, and its excursions. Mr. Reed, was very sick on his Brunswick trip, and had it not been for the many kind attentions of his comrades, he would likely have died. He had a severe chill and other derangements he thinks caused from the changes of the water he drank.

He and Miss Sallie has many curiosities, in the way of sea relics, picked up on the beach and procured in Brunswick. The proceedings will be found elsewhere, of the whole trip.

Mr. Reed desires to return his many thanks to the friends who kindly administered to his sickness on the trip and most especially to Col. E. L. Butler, and lady, of Natch, Neb.

ACCIDENT.—Capt. Swain of the Teal Mining Co., on Long Branch, happened to an accident last week which turned out to be so painful that a physician had to be called in on last Saturday night. While working about the mill a stamp dropped from its holdings accidentally and fell on his foot mashing it severely. Dr. Wheeler went out and gave immediate relief.

Mr. J. B. Harrison, wife, carried the baby, and shook, with colored girl, have all been to see the old mother and relatives in Tennessee. They returned Monday, very much delighted with their trip through the mountains.

Electric Amalgamator.

A company commenced operations here, some time ago, to save the gold left in the sand and muddy water and floured quicksilver. Machines at heavy costs were erected at the Hand and Barlow Mills to try the process. The result has not been satisfactory, from all the indications concerning the experiments and the machines have been taken out and the owners are now preparing to ship them.

The process required the use of large amounts of quicksilver put in amalgamating pans. Several thousand pounds have been employed and the loss from unknown causes amounted to several hundred pounds.

The process is: An electric machine is used and from it conductors are placed, by negative and positive currents which comes in contact with the amalgamating pans underneath the same and the gold and floured quick which escapes through the batteries of the stamp mill and over the copper plates adheres to the quick hence, the saving of the gold.

The process, we thought at first to be feasible, and still think so. The gold which is lost, after going through the batteries and over the silver and amalgamated plates cannot be saved profitably, only by a reworking of the sand with a grinder immediately after the mill plates, and the grinder must reduce the sand to a palpable power, and pass through a fine sieve and over another well prepared plate, and we will guarantee the saving of all the gold that remains in the sand water and powdered quick. We know whereof we speak for we have been experimenting and prospecting for nearly three years, and in our experiments made a test on ore worth two dollars per bushel. On the plate and in the battery we got one dollar and fifty cents and in the grinder, which was at the end of the sand box and turned by hand, as the mill run, we got fifty cents.

Now, from our experiments and observations we contend that our process will save one fourth as much gold as is obtained from the battery and plates. The process is certainly good, and the results will be certain where the ore is free from sulphurets, and where gold is mixed with sulphurets it is necessary to carry the ore through a heated process to destroy the sulphurets and free the gold.

Miss Berdie Turner came home with Miss Sallie Reed from Gainesville and will remain until after the commencement.

Pardon of Lorenzo Stringer.

Governor Gordon, upon a petition signed by seven hundred voters of Lumpkin county, all the jury that heard the case excepting one, and the Senator of the 32nd Senatorial District and the Representative of Lumpkin in the last general assembly of the State issued an order on the 17th inst. pardoning James M. A. Stringer, who was sentenced from the Superior Court of this county in 1883, for killing William Gaddis, to serve twenty years in the penitentiary.

The petition states that the evidence which convicted Stringer in the trial was that of a disreputable woman. Stringer was regarded as a very bad boy from childhood and the evidence against him was altogether circumstantial but was adduced by the citizens of his neighborhood. The evidence went to show that he with others, went to Gaddis' house to give him a scare and possible drive him away to prevent him testifying in a revenue case. Gaddis ran and some one fired at him and he was killed. We do not believe it was the intention of Stringer and his associates to kill Gaddis, but however, it was done.

Now, Stringer is again a free man made so by the constant and faithful works of his mother, who has never tired in his behalf since he was first incarcerated. We hope he may go forth to some new country and live a pious honorable and industrious life and become a useful citizen to the neighborhood wherever he may locate.

Children service to be held in the Methodist Church at Dahlonega—1st Sunday in June.

Mr. Editor:

Permit me to say, through your paper, that owing to the inclemency of the weather on last Sunday, the observance of Children's Day was deferred to 1st Sunday in June. The same programme which we purposed using last Sunday will in the main be used on the day stated above. Sunday school will be held from 9 to 10 o'clock. The services of Children's Day will commence at 10.45. All the children selected to take a part will keep their pieces furnished them and be ready for recitations. Let every one be prepared with a thank offering on that occasion—children and all. Many are the communities where there's no Sunday Schools and many are the Sunday Schools where there's no lesson papers and Quarters. We are blessed with these helps. Let us assist those children without them that they may have them. Thus we will express our gratitude to God for his kindness to us.

We hope to have a bright, beautiful interesting and profitable day. All are invited to attend. The presence of the Baptist School, our Baptist and Presbyterian Brethren, are cordially solicited.

Yours Truly

C. V. WEATHERS,

Dahlonega, Ga., May 22, 1888.

Street Lamps.

The city council has ordered electric street lamps, for the following locations. Meadow's corner, Burnside corner, Hand's corner, Dr. Howard's and Strickland's. Some arrangement ought to be effected to procure one on the square about opposite the Knights of Labor Hall. For information concerning these lights, location, &c., call on the Mayor.

Cemetery Fund.

Another donation has been received by Mayor Hall. Mrs. Carrie E. Harris, who has a dear one resting at this sacred place, who trudged life's pathway with her for many long years, is not forgetful of him, and other friends who rest there. She contributes two dollars and fifty cents to the fund. Come along friends and help in this noble cause, to adorn and beautify the city hence we are all travelling.

This powder never varies. A mark of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kind and cannot be lost in competition with the mildest of low test, short weight alum phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 164 Wall St. N. Y.

Your dealer will REFUND THE MONEY, IF IT FAILS TO CURE. Please read the following TESTIMONIALS.

Judge HOWARD, Conn., who is authority on all points pertaining to the poultry yard, publishes the following letter in the Southern Farmer: "Comer's Guaranteed Chicken Cholera Cure—This Summer I have had the first touch of cholera in my yard for several years. I lost my best cock and several hens. My neighbor, Mr. James T. Comer, of Athens, Ga., heard of my trouble and sent me, to try, a package of his Cholera Cure. When I used this medicine I had two hens in collapse condition, too far gone to eat and about to die. Several others were affected. I fed the remedy in food, as directed, to the flock. I gave the two hens named this medicine in solution. One of these died, the other is now well. In twenty-four hours she was relieved, and in one week entirely well. The other affected fowls all recovered health and vigor in a few days. No other cases developed. All my flocks are now well. It is a month now since the cholera disappeared. I believe the remedy of my friend Comer saved me from a destructive mishap of the worst destroyer of fowls."

HANCOCK GOOSE, Ga., August 22, 1887.—This is to certify that I have given Comer's Guaranteed Chicken Cholera Cure a trial, and can safely recommend it as a certain cure for this fatal disease among fowls.

W. J. GOSS, Athens, Ga., Mar. 7, 1888.—Mrs. J. T. Comer—Dear Jim: When I got the package of Cholera Cure from you my fowls were affected with something that I supposed was the cholera in its first stages. We gave them only a few doses and since that time they seem perfectly healthy, and are now in splendid condition. Yours truly,

W. C. ORR, HANCOCK GOOSE, Ga., March 8, 1888.—J. T. Comer, Athens, Ga., can recommend your C. G. C. C., to any one. It is all you claim for it. Respectfully, R. L. HARDMAN.

Deafness Can't be Cured, By local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional Remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a running, itching, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. Sold by Druggists, 75 cts. March 16.

THE Press.
From Tallapoosa Journal.

Do we appreciate the press? How thoughtlessly we feast on the well filled columns of our papers, not once thinking of the mental and physical labor required to produce them.

The ponderous iron press was once an unsparingly mass of ore awaiting for ages the movements of the busy world to open its prison doors and put it to work. This grand piece of machinery, thought motionless is made to move, though dumb, is made to speak, is governed by the hand of a man, and God's hand is on the lever that moves the whole.

Ideas are collected from all parts of the world and stamped upon the spotless surface, bringing to light the thoughts that struggle within us to be read and criticised by the busy, moving throng; and they are scattered by the busy hands like leaves in an autumn whirlwind. They lodge in the homes of the rich and the poor, and are pursued by bright eyes, and sad eyes, and dim eyes through glasses. Great waves of excitement come and recede as they press on, on, on. What would be the result think you, if every press in the land would cease to operate for a month? We would at least realize their importance.

As it is, we enjoy the products, look eagerly for them and never doubt their coming. The tired mother, after her day's work is done and the little ones are snugly tucked in bed, picks up the paper and reads of wonderful things, and dreadful things; and she seems to float out from her own narrow world into the great one, forgetting that she is tired and has many cares. How often an article from some one gifted in language and with super-ior ideas that lift it as it were out of the slum of all that is low; although we feel our nothingness, like Oliver Twist "ask for more."

Then gather them in from the East and the West.

And fill up the columns with none but the best.

Put on steam, let the cylinders roll, And give us a feast that flows from the soul.

Old friends that have gone to some far away home.

Count the days and the hours for the papers to come;

Then they exclaimed a-ha and o-ho, As they read of the people they used to know.

They speak in a tender and tremulous tone, With a tear bedimmed eye, of the ones that are gone.

Enough of the Battle.

An old colored man was going over a portion of the battle field of Chackamanga with me, and seemed to know so much about the battle itself that I finally inquired:

"Were you here on the ground during the fight?"

"Deed I was, sah. I lived right over yander by dat field."

"How did it begin?"

"Wall, sah, de Yanks cum up an' de rebels cum up. It looked to me like dar was grime to be a scrimmage and I took a seat on dat ar fence you see over yander. I see de Yanks scootin' aroun, an' I was jes gwine to call to de ole woman dat I expected dar'd be a fite, when a big cannon went boom and a big ball cum along an' knocked down fo' miles of dat fence, an' de next thing I knew it was three weeks later, an' I was working for some land and close ober in Knoxville."

"What became of the old woman?"

"Found her seven months later in Kentucky, an' she hadn't got done wid de hysterics yet. Tellyou, boss, I doan want ter hev to save dis Union agin!"

About 20 counties up to date have endorsed Cleveland.

THE HUDSON HOUSE,
GAINESVILLE, GA.,
T. H. P. WRIGHT,
MANAGER.

The Manager of this Elegant Hotel would respectfully announce to the traveling public that he has again taken charge of it, and will spare no pains to bring it fully up to the highest standard of excellence as a house of entertainment. He trusts that his long experience in the business, with a corps of well trained, polite and accommodating assistants, will secure him a liberal share of public patronage.

Terms will be moderate, and service all that can be reasonably required. Give the Hudson a trial, and a future permanent satisfaction.

A POLICEMAN IN DISTRESS

Because His Wife Joined the Salvation Army.

Patrolman Dave Barnes is in Much Trouble—How He Talks About the Army.

Atlanta Journal.

There has been several instances in which the Salvation Army has caused family quarrels.

Another is added to the list and this time the complainant is a policeman.

Patrolman Love Barnes, one of the best and most vigilant officers on the force, is greatly distressed because his wife has joined the Salvation Army. She first went to the army headquarters last summer and soon learned that she quit her church, Evans chapel, and joined the army. Her husband did everything in his power to dissuade her from taking such a step, but she would not listen to his counsel. Hitherto Mr. and Mrs. Barnes married life has been quite pleasant and nothing had come between them to mar their happiness. They have one child a son eight years of age.

A few days ago Patrolman Barnes obtained a leave of absence and has been watching the army members for the purpose of showing up their deceit and hypocrisy. He said to a reporter this morning, "The Salvation Army ought to be suppressed as a nuisance. It is not a religious institution and the fact can be proven."

Major Cooper has been imported to take some steps towards breaking up the army's headquarters.

The chief of police will probably make some investigations, and there will probably be some rich developments, as the army has been quite a noted place for rows & disorders.

Patrolman Barnes wife is now at home, and her husband is hopeful that she will not return to the army headquarters.

The President.

President Cleveland never went to college, and Washington, Jackson, Van Buren, Taylor, Fillmore, Lincoln and Johnson had no college training. John Adams was educated at Harvard, Thomas Jefferson studied Latin at William and Mary, and Madison probably used pony translations while he was in Princeton. Monroe and Tyler were also students at Williamsburg, and John Quincy Adams graduated at Harvard. Harrison was college bred. Pierce was a good mathematical student at Bowdoin college and Buchanan went to school at Dickinson college. General Grant was the only president who had a military education, though a number of the presidents were soldiers. He went to school at West Point. Rutherford Hayes was educated in Ohio, and his school was Kenyon college. Garfield studied at Williams, Mass., and President Arthur was schooled at Union college.

WRONG SPELL.

In reply to Mr. Perkins, republican, of Kansas, Mr. Allen, Democrat, of Mississippi, made the following good bit in Congress the other day. Mr. Allen said that it was a great pity that the gentleman from Kansas could not get his head out of the cupboard and walk squarely up to the issue of to day instead of going back to slavery and rebellion. The gentleman from Kansas reminded him of the story of two men who, when travelling, went to sleep in a room with a cupboard in it. In the night one asked the other to look out of the window and see what kind of a day it was going to be. The latter by mistake opened a cupboard window, and after looking around a while, exclaimed: "It is as dark as h—l, and smells of cheese." [Laughter.] The gentleman from Kansas, instead of getting his head out into the daylight of 1888, had it into the cupboard of rebellion, and everything was dark as h—l and smelled of slavery. [Laughter.]
